BANKING BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE, 54-9

Cloture Threat by Glass Produces Victory.

HOUSE ACTION IS IN DOUBT

Thomas Warns He'll Oppose Virginian for Cabinet.

(Associated Press.)

Climaxing a two-year effort that included breaking one of the longest filibusters of a "lame-duck" session, Virginia's 75-year-old senator, Carter Glass, last night put through the Senate his bill to make far-reaching changes in the Nation's banking laws.

An overwhelming vote of 54 to 9 sent the measure to the House where leaders have said a combination of opposition and other waiting legislation would block a vote on it there before this Congress dies.

The Virginia Democrat, a former Secretary of the Treasury and mentioned as holder of the same post under President Roosevelt, squelched the opposition last night by circulating a petition to invoke the rigid cloture debate-limiting rule.

Senator Thomas' Threat.

A threat to oppose the confirmation of Senator Glass as Secretary of the Treasury, should he be named for that post, was voiced by Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, in taking recognition of the word that Glass was planning a second effort for the bill by invoking cloture.

"If cloture is asked on this bill for a second time by the senator from Virginia," the Oklahoman said, "he can prepare a second cloture petition and have it ready when his name comes before the Senate for confirmation."

Thirty-seven senators, including a dozen or more Republicans and five senators who opposed cloture last week, signed the petition in less than an hour and it was evident the required two-thirds to adopt it was available if Glass entered it.

In the face of this threat, Senators Long, of Louisiana, and Thomas, Democratic leaders of the filibuster, announced they would no longer delay the bill, but predicted it was as good as "dead." Thomas proposed a unanimous consent agreement restricting debate more severely than cloture would have done and calling for a vote before adjournment last night.

Provisions of Measure.

He and Long both gave assurances of their good faith by withholding any amendments, and in less than two hours after the agreement to

Democrats Favor U. S. Gasoline Tax

Members of Ways and Means Vote for Continuance of 1-Cent Levy.

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday decided at an executive meeting to continue the 1-cent a gallon gasoline tax for another year.

Expecting it to return $137,000,000 in the coming fiscal year, Chairman Collier said the committee itself would hold hearings on the measure this afternoon. He forecast early action.

The decision of the Democratic members yesterday was unanimous.

300 WHO BESIEGED GOVERNOR 'EXILED'

Illinois Militia Is Notified After Jobless Outbreak at Horner's Office.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Some 300 persons claiming to represent Illinois' unemployed who staged a near riot in the waiting room of the governor's office were escorted out of the city by police tonight and given orders not to return unless they came in orderly delegations.

Three men and six women, detained when police quelled the disorder, were released and permitted to join their companions, all supposed representatives of the Illinois unemployed council.

The police action was taken shortly after two companies of National Guard, both Springfield units, were ordered to stand by for mobilization in case of further trouble. The guard was not mobilized officially and no further trouble was anticipated by officials.

A delegation of 50 first had attempted to participate in a discussion of the sales tax before the House of Representatives. It was ousted after being disorderly.

It was after the 50 demonstrators had joined 250 companions and started back to the legislative halls that the outbreak at the governor's office occurred.

About 200 of them jammed into the reception room of the governor's office and shouted demands to see him. Guards blocked the doorway to his private office.

However, Gov. Horner appeared in the doorway and offered to speak with five from the delegation if they would be selected. The crowd apparently approved his suggestion, but as the governor stepped back into his private office pandemonium broke loose.

Ten State highway patrolmen and six city police had arrived by that time. At the outburst of shouts that greeted the governor's withdrawal they began swinging their clubs. The crowd rushed the outer door in a body and the door jamb was torn off.

President of Portugal Reported Critically Ill

Lisbon, Portugal, (Thursday) Jan. 26 (U.P.).—President Antonio Oscar de Fragoso Carmona was critically ill today of a serious attack of pneumonia. He is 63.

Heart and kidney complications made his recovery doubtful. Physicians in attendance said the crisis was expected during the day.

$30,000 Is Found In Maryland Grave

Vacant Vault in Abandoned Cemetery Yields Pot of Cash to Buyer.

Salisbury, Md., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Discovery of a pot of money in an abandoned graveyard near here was reported today by Vance Butler, a filling station operator. The value of the find was estimated by Butler at $30,000.

Butler said he recently purchased some land for $200 and had set two Negroes to work clearing the ground. While they were digging they discovered the land formerly had been used for a graveyard.

Last Friday a hand-made brick vault was found. The vault proved to be empty, but when the Negroes succeeded in removing the brick they discovered a rusty, iron pot beneath the vault, and in the pot was the money.

SENATE VOTE DUE TODAY ON U. S. PAY CUT

Other Federal Employe Problems Are at Stake.

TREASURY-POSTAL MEASURE IS PUSHED

All Eleven Huge Supply Bills Are Awaiting Passage in Jammed Calendar.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The Treasury-Postoffice bill, carrying the proposed 1 2-3 per cent Federal pay cut and far-reaching economy provisions last night unexpectedly became the Senate's unfinished business when the chamber suddenly broke its deadlock on the Glass banking bill and pushed it to passage.

For more than two weeks the Treasury-Postoffice measure and its extensive economy rider have been ready and waiting the action of the Senate. As a result of an agreement reached last night, it automatically will come up on the Senate calendar when the Senate meets at noon today.

The delay has afforded Federal employes opportunity to muster what they hope is a preponderant majority of votes against the 1 2-3 per cent additional Federal salary slash proposed by the Senate Economy Committee. It is possible the showdown will come today or tomorrow.

Vote Unexpectedly Reached.

Faced with the threatened tie-up of his entire appropriations program, Senator Frederick Hale (Republican), Maine, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, has been chafing probably more than any other senator under the Glass bill filibuster.

With only six weeks left of the present session, not one of the eleven huge supply bills has passed the Senate. The only appropriation bill of any kind to pass both houses—the $31,000,000 deficiency bill—came back with a veto Tuesday.

So when a vote unexpectedly was reached on the Glass bill last night, Senator Hale lost no time in getting the Senate to make the Treasury-Postoffice bill, first and largest of the supply measures, its unfinished business. He will have something to say about the supply bill jam when the Senate convenes today, and is expected to urge nonpartisan cooperation to the end that all of the bills may be disposed of before the special session.

Numerous Employe Problems.

There are numerous Federal employe problems at stake in the Treasury-Postoffice measure, not least of

Knoxville and Chicago Report Jobless Rioting

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Police and unemployed men clashed in a hand-to-hand fight today. No severe casualties were reported, although several were battered and bruised. After nearly an hour of pushing and fighting, 23 persons had been jailed on charges of fighting and refusing to move on.

Chicago, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Fifty policemen battled a crowd of demonstrators, brandishing clubs as they marched on an emergency relief station today, two police officers and a newspaper man being stunned by blows over the head.

Girl Accuses

Youth, 20, of Sending Her Into Streets, Betraying Promise to Wed.

HOMER SHROPSHIRE.

A soft-spoken and mannerly youth of 20 years, but appearing younger, will be brought before the United States commissioner today for alleged violation of the Mann act, police said last night following an investigation.

His arrest was brought about through information given Policemen J. E. Bennett and J. R. LeFoe, of the Traffic Bureau, by a young girl, who appealed to the policemen for help.

The girl said that the youth induced her to leave her home in a Virginia city and come with him to Washington under the promise of marriage. He did not fulfill his promise, she said, but forced her to go out on the streets.

Working on this information, the police and agents of the Department of Justice apprehended the youth.

DE VALERA LEADING IN IRISH ELECTIONS

Cosgrave Party Wins Seven Seats in Dail Against President's Nineteen.

Dublin, Ireland (Thursday), Jan. 26 (U.P.).—President Eamon de Valera's supporters jubilantly claimed victory in the general elections as the vote count continued early today to pile up strong leads in many districts for his party, the Fianna Fail.

Both De Valera and William T. Cosgrave, his opponent for the presidency, carried their home constituencies, and both were easily elected to the new Dail. Fianna Fail candidates won by large majorities in many districts.

The comparative state of the parties at 3 a. m. on Dail candidates elected was: Fianna Fail, 19; Cosgravites, 7; Independents, 4; Labor, 1.

De Valera's constituency in County Clare gave him 18,565 votes, compared to the 12,504 votes in the last election.

In Cork, Cosgrave's home, the president's opponent got 14,863 votes to win a seat in the Dail. Both victories had been regarded as a foregone conclusion.

Both were running for the Dail and also for the presidency, with De Valera's chances brighter as the hours went by and the returns continued all through the night to pile up.

The fate of immediate future relations between the Irish Free State and England depended on the outcome of the vote. The issue amounted to a "showdown" on relations with England. If De Valera is re-elected, he intends to continue the tariff war, refuse to compromise on the land annuities dispute, fight the oath of allegiance and, in general, cut Ireland off from any working arrangement with London.

STIMSON ASKS PERU TO HALT WAR GESTURE

Action in Leticia Dispute Follows Parley of Powers Here.

COLOMBIA GUNBOATS ARE NEARING TOWN

Brazil Solicits Other Latin Republics in Peace Try; Treaties Cited.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson yesterday called upon Peru not to break the peace with Colombia over the Leticia controversy, and to respect its obligations as an adherent to the Briand-Kellogg anti-war treaty in settling the dispute by amicable means.

In a note addressed to the Peruvian foreign minister, Stimson voiced alarm at the expression made January 14, to the United States by the Lima government concerning military preparations being made to prevent the ejection by Colombia of Peruvian citizens who have been in possession of the town of Leticia since September 1.

The United States note was sent after he had conferred with the ambassadors of Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Japan as representatives of the signatories of the pact of Paris.

Stimson Is Disturbed.

"I should not be frank," the Secretary said, "if I did not candidly state to your excellency that I have been much disturbed by the statement in your telegram of January 14 * * * that the military measures taken by the Peruvian authorities at Loreto were undertaken because of the measures which the Colombian government is obliged to take to reestablish the Colombian authorities deposed in the Leticia territory.

The Secretary said his apprehensions were heightened by a statement of the Peruvian Ambassador in Washington on January 23 that Peru felt that "if the Brazilian government, in endeavoring to find a satisfactory solution of this situation, insist that Leticia should be delivered to Colombia she will fail in her endeavor to prevent war because the Loretanos (people of Loreto) are decided to oppose forcibly any use of force by Colombia, and that Peru can not stand passively by when the interests of Loreto are at stake."

The note cited Peru's acceptance of the validity of the treaty by which she acknowledged Leticia as Colombian territory and disavowed any official connection with the seizure of the Amazon town by her citizens. Stimson reviewed the history of the territorial settlement which culminated in establishment of the present boundary line by the treaty of 1922, and urged that peaceful means be employed should revision of the treaty be considered necessary.

As Secretary Stimson dispatched his note, Colombian gunboats steamed up the Amazon toward Leticia, where

Only 21 House Members Appear for Night Session

(Associated Press.)

Of the House's 427 members only 21 answered the call for an overtime session of two hours last night, and speakers were so scarce that the chamber adjourned after 40 minutes.

The purpose of the night meeting was to hasten consideration of the bill appropriating for next year's needs of the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor Departments by getting some of the talking out of the way. Four Democrats—Lankford, of Georgia; Swank, of Oklahoma; Glover, of Arkansas, and West, of Ohio—spoke.

Pension Is Put Off For Mrs. Coolidge

Robinson Says She Is Well Provided For; Places Veterans First.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge may be the victim of the economy policy personified by her late husband. Chairman Robinson of the Senate Pensions Committee said in a statement yesterday the bill to provide the customary $5,000 pension for widows of Presidents probably would not be reported this session.

"I favor delaying action for two reasons," the Indiana Republican said. "In the first place I understand there is no economic compulsion, that Mrs. Coolidge is well provided for.

"In the second, I want to see what is going to be done about reducing the small, inadequate compensation of veterans who do need the money."

BRITAIN ACCEPTS BID; WOULD INCLUDE ALL DEBTORS AT PARLEY

House G. O. P. Enlists For War on Dumping

Members Adopt Snell Resolution Demanding Immediate Legislation to Reduce Imports From Depreciated Currency Nations.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Immediate enactment of legislation to head off the increasing flood of imports from countries having depreciated currencies was asked by the Republicans in the House yesterday.

Their demand was set forth in a resolution which was presented by Representative Bertrand H. Snell, party leader. The resolution was adopted unanimously by a closed party conference.

The action was taken on the eve of hearings before a ways and means subcommittee on the depreciated currency bill introduced by Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), of Washington. The hearings are to begin at 10 o'clock this morning in the committee room in the House Office Building.

President Hoover has been authoritatively represented as strongly favoring legislation designed to overcome, in American tariff rates, the effect of depreciation of many foreign currencies and undoubtedly would give his approval to such legislation if enacted before he leaves office.

The growing drive for enactment of such legislation not only has for its purpose the achievement of its professed objective, but also is designed to persuade other nations to return to the gold standard. Such a suggestion already has been advanced to British authorities in connection with discussions about the forthcoming world economic conference which is to be called some time in the future. The date is to be fixed later. It had been expected that a definite date would be fixed by the international gathering in Geneva, but that body postponed decision on the date until it meets again some time within the next three months.

Representative Snell said that depreciated currency legislation would

ROOSEVELT STUDIES BUDGET WITH HINES

Former Federal Railroads Head Believed Slated to Be Director.

Warm Springs, Ga., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt tonight called in Walker D. Hines, of New York, to go over the gigantic budget-slashing job he is determined to put into immediate effect.

Washington reports that Hines, one time director general of the Federal Railway Administration, is to be the director of the budget in the Roosevelt administration drew no denial here.

Pledged to a 25 per cent cut in Government expenditures, Mr. Roosevelt realizes he has a big-time job and he wants to get a running start on it.

Meanwhile the news lid was clamped down here and world speculation over the forthcoming war debts and economic parleys was permitted to go its own way. The President-elect has his own ideas on these and he is going to wait and tell them to foreign envoys when he is ready to do this bargaining.

Friends of Roosevelt were inclined to look at the speeches and reports from abroad as part of the general preparatory public discussion which precedes every international negotiation.

It is known that cancellation of the war debts is not in the mind of the President-elect. This is part of the British program outlined by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer.

Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier and economist, left this afternoon after two days of confer-

CITY RELIEF ACTION BY HOUSE FORECAST

$625,000 Item May Be Put in Second Deficiency Measure for Speed.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

House action by the close of this week on the District's $625,000 emergency relief appropriation was predicted last night by Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns, who called a meeting of his Deficiency Appropriations subcommittee for 11 o'clock this morning to take up the matter.

The subcommittee will address itself immediately to the local relief urgency. A proposal will be considered to strip the $31,000,000 deficiency measure of $28,000,000 in tax refunds, and send the remaining items, including the relief fund, to the House with dispatch.

Should this course be chosen, tax refund appropriations would be carried instead in the second deficiency bill, detaching from the local relief problem that part of the first deficiency measure which brought on the President's veto. The veto message held the provision for Congressional review of refunds over $20,000, "unconstitutional."

Regardless of what course the sub-

Two Admit Guilt In Extortion Try

Youths Sought $200 From Mrs. O. H. P. Johnson on "Expose" Threat.

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Two brothers, William, 19, and Michael Mitrovich, 17, both of Akron, Ohio, pleaded guilty in Federal court today to violating the law passed soon after the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., in which a maximum penalty of 20 years is fixed for persons using the mails to extort money by threats.

They were charged with demanding $200 from Mrs. O. H. P. Johnson, prominent and wealthy Washington, D. C., woman, upon the threat to "expose" the fact that her brother, Allen Hemmick, had obtained research work at Columbia University from the emergency unemployment relief committee.

Mrs. Johnson turned the letter over to postal inspectors, who mailed a decoy letter and arrested the brothers. Federal Judge John C. Knox set Wednesday for sentencing and it was expected the youth of the defendants would save them from a prison term.

9 Killed, 11 Wounded In Police-Red Battle

Dresden, Germany, Jan. 25 (U.P.).—Police and Communists clashed with fatal results here tonight. The casualties listed at least nine dead and eleven wounded.

The crowd bombarded the police with beer mugs and other missiles during the brief, furious hand-to-hand battle in the crowded hall. Police, sorely pressed, drew revolvers and poured a fusillade of shots into their attackers. The panic which ensued was terrific as the Communists tried to get out.

PARIS STATUS IS UNCERTAIN

Reference to Pact at Lausanne Arouses Senators.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The British government yesterday accepted the invitation tendered by President-elect Roosevelt through the present Secretary of State for a debt discussion here after March 4. In accepting the invitation, however, Great Britain made all reservations as to agreements on economic problems. Any such agreement, the British note declared, can not be reached unless and until the other countries interested, have had an opportunity of conferring at the world economic conference.

Sir Ronald Lindsay called at the State Department shortly before lunch yesterday with the British reply. As soon as Col. Stimson had read its contents, he immediately ordered a copy of the note transmitted by telegraph to Mr. Roosevelt at Warm Springs.

Significant in Details.

The British note was significant in the following details:

First, the reply veered sharply away from the bilateral implication of the Roosevelt invitation and indicated that Great Britain wishes to include other nations in the conversations.

Secondly, the British delegation proceeded on the assumption that the debt conversations here will be handled by the President-elect himself since they interpreted the Roosevelt wording of "incoming administration" to mean the President-elect himself.

Thirdly, the intention of the American authorities to discuss the debts on the basis of "quid pro quo," has been somewhat checkmated by the British intention of keeping all such arrangements, outside of the debt proper, for the province of the economic conference.

Isolation of Problem.

The isolation of the debt problem in the Anglo-American conference is as little appealing to President Hoover as it is to his successor.

President Hoover was understood yesterday to believe that the stabilization of currency was the surest way out of the economic depression and that this concept would be brought to the attention of foreign debtor nations in their appeals for revision. In view of the fact that this was made known after the White House interview between the President and the President-elect, it was assumed that the declaration had the tacit approval of the new administration as well as the conviction of the present.

After going through the perfunctory formula of thanking the President-elect for his invitation, the British note at once indicated the desirability of broadening the bases of the debt discussions.

British Note Is Quoted.

This was expressed as follows:

"The effect of the debt situation upon a wide range of world economic problems is crucial to every government." Later on in the note the same anxiety for the interests of other governments was demonstrated in this language:

"It will be recognized that decisions on matters which constitute the sub-

Billions in Relief Are Urged To Save Farmers of Nation

Democratic Majority and Roosevelt Behind Program to Provide Cash to Producers, End Mortgage Sales and Reduce Debt Interest Rates.

(Associated Press.)

Help for the farmer on a gigantic scale never before attempted, was proposed in Congress yesterday in legislative form, with the backing of the powerful Democratic leadership and organized agriculture.

Calling for Federal outlays running far above a billion and a half, the huge program was designed to provide the farmers with ready cash, postpone their mortgage payments and lower their interest rates. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, introduced the bill.

At about the same time, spokesmen for the big farm organizations who helped to frame this and the other major farm relief proposals, were telling a Senate committee that revolution in the rural regions impends unless adequate steps are taken.

They gave their views at the opening of hearings on the domestic allotment bill in which are bound up their hopes for higher prices on what the farmer sells.

The legislation introduced by Robinson rounded out a farm relief program of mammoth proportions, to the support of which President-elect Roosevelt is understood to be committed in a general way.

Many months ago he told the farm leaders that if they could agree upon a program he would be disposed to regard it favorably. Accordingly, the farm groups pushing these measures have pinned their hopes on the special session expected to be called by Mr. Roosevelt early this spring. Although trying to make as much

FEDERAL WAGE CUT CALLED SPECIAL TAX

Representative Black Urges Employes to Affiliate With A. F. of L.

Calling the wage cut for Government employes a special tax, which, if those who levied it had the courage, would be imposed on all with similar incomes, Representative Loring M. Black, jr., of New York, last night urged Federal employes to align themselves with the American Federation of Labor as an organization "that can make itself felt on election day." Mr. Black spoke at the meeting of the District Department of the American Federation of Government Employes at the Hamilton Hotel.

"They won't do it to you," he declared, "if you have a sizeable representation in the American Federation of Labor. I note that the American Federation of Labor is showing its teeth and it is a mighty good thing for the country. If you want to get a real hearing from Congress, line up with the organization that can give you a powerful backing."

Representative Black told his audience that "Federal employes didn't come to us in high hats with tomahawks inside asking for loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The country can not be built up by giving money to those at the top and then hoping it will seep down to those at the bottom," he declared. "What is needed is some way to get money direct to the workers."

A. J. Oliver, national organizer for the federation emphasized the benefits of affiliation to organized labor and referred to the withdrawal of Federal employes from the A. F. of L.

A report on the legislative situation was received from Miss Ethel M. Smith, chairman of the department's legislative committee. Mrs. Sophie J. Bergner, chairman of the committee arranging a card party and dance for the Tariff Commission and United States Employes Compensation Commission lodges, outlined her plans and invited the federation's membership to attend. It will be held February 10 at the Carlton Hotel.

Samuel Sacco, president of the Adjutant's General' Office Lodge, was appointed by Michael D. Schaefer, president of the department, chairman of a committee to obtain permanent quarters for the department which now includes 30 lodges in the District.

Baker Hits Constitutionality Of U. S. Water Power Act

Former Ex Officio Chairman of Federal Commission Concludes Arguments for Appalachian in New River Case at Alexandria.

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The constitutionality of the Federal water power act of 1920 was assailed today in argument on the New River case by Newton D. Baker, who as Secretary of War was exofficio chairman of the first Federal Power Commission.

Baker concluded argument for the Appalachian Power Co., which is seeking to build and operate a hydroelectric plant on New River near Radford, Va., without submitting to strict Federal regulation required under a major license. The Power Commission has decreed such a license necessary.

Baker's part in writing of the act was debated in the argument. He said that as Secretary of War he expressed no opinions as to law involved or the constitutionality of the act. In the rebuttal argument, Huston Thompson, chief Government counsel, read from Congressional hearings on the act, a statement by Baker that he, Secretary Lane, of the Interior Department, and Secretary Houston, of the Agriculture Department, participated in drafting the measure.

Virginia's contention that its own State's rights and the property rights of its citizens would be usurped by the regulation insisted upon by the power commission was presented earlier by R. Gray Williams, of Winchester, special attorney for the Commonwealth.

Williams also launched an attack on "the growth of bureaucracy in Washington," in which Baker concurred.

In his argument on constitutionality, Baker said that while the commerce clause of the Constitution was the only justification for the act, regulation not related to interstate commerce was imposed by the act.

After the rebuttal argument by Thompson and Oswald Ryan, chief counsel of the power commission, the case was taken under advisement by Federal Judge Luther B. Way. Way said he hoped to devote most of next two or three weeks to the case and would render an opinion as early as possible.

In discussing the effect of the proposed hydroelectric dam on navigation, Baker said protection of navigation was not the purpose of the water power act.

"The intention of Congress in 1920," he said, "was not to aid navigation. There is not a syllable in that act to indicate such a purpose.

"In fact," he added, "the whole interest of the Government in the protection of navigation was left where it was."

Near the close of his presentation, Baker said the company tried to avoid a fight with the Government over the license and was willing to accept a minor part license, which would have subjected the dam to supervision of operation only.

The former War Secretary said he was "heartily in favor of the Government operating Muscle Shoals" and he is "willing for Congress to go into Federal regulation as far as it likes, but it must pay for what it takes."

The recapture provision of the law does not guarantee just remuneration, he contended.

In the argument for Virginia by Williams he said the State feels "this is one of the most serious threats to its sovereignty in the last 50 years." He said the sole right to regulate development of the State's natural resources is vested in the Commonwealth and that Virginia has adequate laws for such regulation.

In addition, he said, the Federal water power act does not observe the sovereign rights of citizens of Virginia. It permits recapture, he said, without adequate guarantee that the property owner will be adequately reimbursed.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS DEBT PARLEY INVITATION WITH RESERVATIONS

ject of the approaching world economic conference and which affect other States can not be reached before discussions take place at that conference between all the States represented there."

The inclusion of these points in the British note was interpreted here yesterday as indicating the solicitude of the present British government for the interests of France, cosignatory with Great Britain of the gentlemen's agreement of the Lausanne treaty.

Senate Is Stirred.

A mention of the Lausanne treaty yesterday in the Senate brought forth one of the bitterest denunciations that agreement has had since it was first made known last summer. Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), California, stirred the Senate and even provoked a nod of approval of Senator Smoot when he declared emphatically that he is one with Great Britain in specifying that the Anglo-American debt agreement must be a final settlement. It was evident from his attitude, however, that the Johnson finality was not of the same nature as that indicated by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer in his speech of Tuesday night at Leeds, England, to which the Senator from California was replying.

"The Lausanne Treaty was predicated wholly upon American action with regard to debts from these nations to the United States." Then Johnson ironically observed:

"They were going to forgive Germany her reparations, but they first made such a remission dependent upon the United States forgiving them their debts. It is tantamount to cancellation if the United States agrees to receive only the same amount as the allies agreed to receive from Germany, 1 per cent of her total sum."

Then the California senator became explosive: "One per cent of what we ought to receive from our debtors. Why that is cancellation."

Attitude of British.

The attitude of the British government in shrinking away from the discussion of practical economic problems, such as tariffs and stabilization of currencies which are included in the temporary agenda of the World Economic Conference, indicates that Great Britain will only return to the gold standard after receiving substantial concessions in one form or another.

As it is seen in the highest circles of executive authority at the present time, the world economic situation presents the following formula for improvement: Either a drastic increase in tariff for all countries or the return to the gold standard by those countries off it. The present condition of international trade is strictured by the exaggerated protection of tariff rates. As the tariffs go up, price levels decline and the future is ruinous for economic stability. The forthcoming debt conversations between the United States and its several debtors, will leave a large space for discussion of the tariff question, particularly with the countries who have, or claim to have, no capacity to pay. They will be asked for compensations in tariffs.

Stabilization of Currency.

But the tariff conciliation is at best an unsatisfactory approach to the real problem of world trade, when such a major problem of currency stabilization remains to be adjusted. This was the first finding of the world economic delegates in their preliminary researches at Geneva. Stabilization of prices, and stabilization of currency was pronounced by the economists there assembled as the only remedy for the economic miasma. The United States and the American workingman has had reason to feel the truth of this economic principle, in the sudden influx of foreign goods which followed the departure from the gold standard by Great Britain and other countries. This influx has accelerated at such a pace that at the present time, it is causing great unemployment here and damage to the American agricultural elements of the country.

The impression seemed to prevail last night in some quarters that this move of Great Britain was an effort to include France in the debt negotiations, from which she has been hitherto excluded on account of her nonpayment of the interest due on her American war debt last December 15. President-elect Roosevelt has not definitely indicated his program for dealing with such countries as France, Belgium and Poland who have deferred the payments on their obligations and have so far not indicated when they will be made.

Position of France.

However, the Roosevelt program, based on the principle that the "creditor should ever hold himself available for the offers of his debtor," is regarded as a generous offer to such countries.

The position of France is somewhat complicated by the fact that her Parliamentary majority under the leadership of Premier Paul-Boncour is in danger of imminent dissolution. What renders the French picture the more inexplicable is the fact that the Boncour government is almost exactly constituted as the previous government of Edouard Herriot, with the exception of two members. That is to say, the Chamber of Deputies reversed Herriot because he urged the payment of the French debt, but immediately afterward approved a government which was the same with the exception of the premier and one other cabinet portfolio. Eventual payment of the $20,000,000 French debt is expected as soon as the legislative processes of a strong cabinet under Herriot again are constituted.

Paris, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—United States Ambassador Walter E. Edge went on a fact-finding expedition today to the Quai D'Orsay, but he found Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour wary about indicating what line he is planning to take in respect to the war debts in view of recent developments in Washington.

Previously the premier had talked with Lord Tyrrell, the British Ambassador, who, it is understood, gave him the latest developments in the exchange of correspondence between Britain and President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt through Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson.

Both conversations were described authoritatively as informative in character and as including disarmament.

Text of Britain's Note Accepting Parley Bid

The text of the British note on war debt discussions with the incoming Roosevelt administration, delivered at the State Department yesterday, follows:

We have received with great satisfaction the communication sent by the President-elect of the United States through you in reply to our proposal of November 10 for a discussion on the American debt question. We note that Mr. Roosevelt would like to receive a representative or representatives of his majesty's government at Washington as soon as possible after March 4. His majesty's government are happy to accept this invitation.

The effect of the debt situation upon a wide range of world economic problems is crucial to every government and in the course of the discussion at Washington on the debt we shall be glad to take the opportunity of exchanging views with Mr. Roosevelt on those other matters in which the two governments are so closely interested.

It will be recognized that decisions on matters which constitute the subject of the approaching world economic conference and which affect other States can not be reached before discussions take place at that conference between all the States represented there.

Paul-Boncour Rule Is Faced by Defeat

All Left Parties Agree to Oppose Government's Financial Policy.

Paris, Thursday, Jan. 26 (U.P.).—Defeat of the government of Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour before the end of the week seemed indicated today. Representatives of all left parties, which have 317 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, and a Communist group, resolved by an overwhelming majority to oppose solidly the government's financial program.

It was resolved:

1. To oppose the finance commission's budget.

2. To refuse postponement of debate Thursday (meaning probable defeat before the week-end).

3. To vote against further proposals to refer the budget to the finance commission.

INAUGURAL LEADERS FACE BAND PROBLEM

Far More Seeking Places in Parade Than Two-Hour March Allows.

Bands desiring to take part in the Roosevelt inaugural parade are becoming the most pressing problem which the inaugural parade committee, Col. E. M. Watson, chairman, has to face. Applications indicate that the majority of musical organizations in the United States want to have a place in the line of march. A two-hour parade has certain musical limitations. The bands must be so spaced as to prevent discordant clashes.

In contrast to the dilemma of the parade committee is the proposal which is being considered by the general entertainment committee, Huston Thompson, chairman, for a band contest in which bands and more bands would be welcome. In the development of the street festival plan, which would make a playground out of Constitution avenue between Fifteenth and Seventeenth streets on the night of March 4, Mr. Thompson's committee is considering the holding of a band contest. If this project can be worked out, all the bands in Washington will be invited to compete for prizes.

Through cooperation, it is likely that room will be found in the band contest for those organizations which for purely mechanical reasons can not be taken care of in the parade.

The general entertainment committee is convinced the street festival idea, first proposed by John W. Childress, vice chairman, is likely to prove one of the most attractive features of free public entertainment. Arrangements have been initiated to so equip the two-block stretch in the Mall with loud speakers, so that whatever form of entertainment is provided it will be audible along the entire length of the avenue, which will be roped off.

In order to clarify confusion which has arisen as to the dimensions of the inaugural ball posters to be submitted in the $100 contest, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the inaugural ball committee, has announced that the required dimensions are 20 by 26 inches. All entries should be submitted to inaugural ball headquarters, Hill Building, not later than February 18.

House Committee Votes Appropriation of $25,000

The House District Committee yesterday ordered a favorable report to the House on the Norton bill, authorizing appropriation of $25,000 to enable the District Commissioners to provide adequate local protection during the inaugural ceremonies.

Favorable reports were ordered on three other measures by the committee. One would set up a special board to license electricians in the District, another would give the police property clerk broader leeway in disposing of materials on hand, and a fourth authorizes the sale of a small strip of land in Anacostia.

GLASS BANKING BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

limit debate was reached the bill was passed. Long, paired against the bill, was absent when the vote was taken.

The measure calls for more than 25 changes in the national and Federal Reserve acts designed to curb bank failures, assist depositors of closed banks and stop the flow of Federal Reserve credit to speculative channels.

Before passage two important amendments were adopted. One, by Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, would give the controller of the currency permissive power to reopen banks on petition of depositors representing 85 per cent of the deposits.

The other, by Senator Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, would make it a misdemeanor for any executive officer of a reserve member bank or his relatives to borrow from that bank. The maximum penalty for violating this section was fixed at one year in prison and $5,000 fine, while the banks involved would have to pay not more than $10,000.

Relatives' Borrowing.

Gore said he had been informed by receivers of some banks that one-third of the bank failures were caused by borrowings by officers of the institutions and their relatives and told of a president of one bank who borrowed $300,000 when the limit was only $65,000, causing the institution to fail.

An effort by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, to strike out the section permitting branch banking among national banks in the nine States authorizing this system among their own financial houses was defeated, 45 to 17.

The last day of debate on the bill, which had been before the Senate since January 5, was featured, as on yesterday, with demands for currency inflation, but this argument petered out several hours before the final vote.

Only four Republicans and four Democrats opposed passage along with the single Farmer-Labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota.

STIMSON ASKS PERU TO HALT WAR MOVE

Peruvian troops awaited to protect Peruvian nationals who in September seized the town and jailed the Colombian authorities. The boats were due to arrive in about two days. Colombia, which gained the port by treaty in 1922, has refused all conciliation efforts pending return to her of the town, claiming the question is an internal one.

Besides consulting with the five ambassadors Tuesday night, Stimson had his Assistant Secretary for Latin America, Francis White, communicating with representatives of other governments signatory or adhering to the Kellogg pact in an effort to flood Lima with notes of protest against the impending bloodshed.

The United States, Stimson said, which has already informed the Peruvian government through American Ambassador Dearing of Washington's support of a Brazilian proposal for solving the controversy, will send Peru a note in the same vein as a Kellogg pact signatory. The action was not dependent, he said, upon agreement by any of the other powers represented at the meeting at his home Tuesday night.

The Brazilian proposal supported by the United States calls for Peru to permit Brazil to take over Leticia and return it to Colombia, with the understanding that conversations be held in Rio de Janeiro to eliminate dissatisfaction with the 1922 treaty. Colombia accepted this proposal, but Peru refused, stalemating the negotiations.

Brazil, meanwhile, was also busy yesterday lining up support of other American republics behind her plan for negotiations at Rio de Janeiro.

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The League of Nations special committee on the dispute between Peru and Colombia over the border city of Leticia today worked out proposals for settlement of the conflict which are to be presented tomorrow to the league council.

Sean Lester, of the Irish Free State, head of the committee, said the proposals were definite and positive in nature, but he did not reveal their exact character. It was speculated that the committee will recommend some scheme of arbitral settlement together with an appeal for cessation of all military movements.

SENATE MAY VOTE TODAY ON PAY CUT

which is the Senate Economy Committee's proposal to deprive the Civil Service Commission of all of its personnel records, leaving these to be maintained instead by the various departments.

Gov. Thomas Campbell, president of the Civil Service Commission, has used every argument to defeat the move. He has intimated it would practically deprive the commission of its right to pass on appointments, and provide the initial step toward return of the spoils system.

Members of the Senate Civil Service Committee, led by Senator Porter H. Dale (Republican), Vermont, its chairman, have promised a floor fight to defeat the proposal.

An important provision in the economy rider, to be taken up as part of the pending bill, is a broad authorization for the incoming President to reorganize the Federal structure. The President would have the power to regroup and even to abolish any Federal agencies, except departments. His recommendations would be subject to concurrent approval by both Houses.

WITNESSES FAVOR HOOVER AIR FIELD

Gravelly Point Site Forced Into Background at House Hearing.

Acquisition by lease of Washington-Hoover Field as a municipal airport was favored over the proposed Gravelly Point development by witnesses appearing at hearings yesterday before the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

A. Pendleton Tallaferro, jr., chief of the airport section of the Commerce Department's aeronautic branch, said something should be done immediately to improve conditions at the field. He heartily indorsed leasing of the airport property for at least temporary operation by the Government, under supervision of the director of the office of Public Buildings and Public Parks.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of the office, said it would take five or six years to develop the Gravelly Point site. He said he saw no objection to the Government leasing the Washington-Hoover site, but declared himself firmly opposed to purchase.

Both stressed the wisdom of eliminating the present military road, if 100 per cent safety is to be obtained.

Civic Washington was represented at the hearings by Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, and Clarence A. Miller, chief of the airport subcommittee of the Board of Trade. Pointing out that great numbers will fly here for the inauguration, Mr. Littlepage asked immediate action, leaving permanent decision to the next Congress. Mr. Miller submitted a report. The hearings will be resumed in a few days.

ences understood to have relation to the war debts and railroad problems.

Asked if he would be a member of the Roosevelt Cabinet, he smiled and declined to answer. He said the national transportation committee he heads would meet in Washington Friday, Saturday and Sunday and then go to work on the preparation of its report for salvation of the railroads.

(Associated Press.)

Walker D. Hines, director general of Government-supervised railroads during the World War period, yesterday was said by close associates of President-elect Roosevelt to have been offered the directorship of the Federal Budget Bureau.

It is generally understood here that Mr. Hines would accept, and that he was recommended to Mr. Roosevelt by Swager Sherley, of this city, who declined appointment.

HALLORAN CLEARED OF SLAYING CHARGES

Court Ruling Gives Tigress Renewed Hope of Saving Life.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A ruling that the prosecutor had failed to prove the commission of a murder today freed John J. Halloran of a charge of being an accessory in the Phoenix "trunk slayings," and gave counsel for Winnie Ruth Judd new hope of saving her from the gallows.

Through the complexities of the law, Mrs. Judd is sentenced to die February 17 for what Superior Judge J. C. Niles held today was not murder so far as the State had shown by evidence in Halloran's preliminary hearing.

Arthur C. Verge, attorney for the condemned woman, announced at Los Angeles he would ask the Arizona board of pardons and paroles for a full parole for his client at a hearing next week, and would cite the Halloran decision and the recommendations of the Maricopa County grand jury for clemency in support of his plea.

Judge Niles ruled that Mrs. Judd's testimony accusing the lumberman of aiding her in disposing of the bodies of Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson and advising her to keep the killings secret and escape to California, showed that no offense had been committed, because her story was that she shot the women in self-defense.

Capone to Appeal After Writ Defeat

Leahy Tells Plans Following Refusal of Habeas Corpus by Court.

Atlanta, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The United States Government won another round today in its fight to keep Al Capone in prison.

The Government's latest victory against the former gangster came when Federal Judge Marvin Underwood sustained a motion that dismissed Capone's petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Capone serving a 10-year sentence at the Federal prison here for violating income tax laws, pleaded for a writ of habeas corpus on contention the statute of limitations voided the Government's charge.

William E. Leahy, one of the lawyers who pleaded Capone's case, said in Washington an appeal from Judge Underwood's decision would be noted in the Circuit Court of Appeal here. He said that should the decision be upheld in that court, a petition for a writ of certiorari would be submitted to the Supreme Court of the United States.

SNELL ASKS HOUSE G. O. P. TO MAKE WAR ON DUMPING

mean the reemployment of more than 1,000,000 Americans which, in turn would mean employment of 2,000,000 more, now unemployed. He estimated that the flood of imports from cheap currency nations is costing the United States a loss of $9,000,000 a day in wages or a total of $2,700,000,000 a year.

"As representatives of the American people we face the fact of appalling national distress. Depreciated currency legislation will end some of this distress; therefore, it should be enacted at this session," Mr. Snell said.

"The exact amount of distress it will alleviate is immaterial; the fact that it will alleviate some, is enough to demand immediate action. Depreciated currency legislation does not involve, here and now, any question of party policy. It merely means making the tariff act of 1930 mean what it says. It does not change the policy of that act, nor commit anyone to that policy. It is emergency legislation necessary to meet changed conditions in many foreign countries and required immediately by our own widespread national distress.

"We urge the Ways and Means Committee, which has appointed a subcommittee to consider this matter, to immediate action and the report of proper legislation. Such legislation will have our full support.

"Ours is an American Congress. It should legislate for America, and do it now. Delay, in the face of admitted facts, is obvious disregard of a plain duty."

He pointed out that the estimated national income had shrunk from $85,000,000,000 in 1929 to $37,500,000,000 in 1932, a decrease of more than 60 per cent, but the decrease of imports from depreciated currency countries, when corrected to par of exchange, has only been about 4 per cent.

Instances of the large increases in imports of foodstuffs, agricultural products and other commodities were cited by Representative Snell for the first eight months of this year. Among the examples he cited were:

Among the large increases are cod and other salt and pickled fish from Denmark, 3,729.8%; salmon, fresh or frozen, from Japan, 2,511.8%; fish in air-tight containers, from Canada, 4,669.9%; cheese, from Denmark, 136.3%; wrapping paper (other than Kraft), from Sweden, 615.9%; pig iron, from Sweden, 181%; from the United Kingdom, 611.3%; footwear with fabric uppers, from Japan, 129.7%; ocean pearl buttons, from Japan, 117%; combs, except metal, from Japan, 220.1%; belting and welting leather, from the United Kingdom, 105.7%; goat and kid leather, from the United Kingdom, 157.3%; wool and other yarns, from the United Kingdom, 221.2%; Portland cement, from the United Kingdom, 271.6%; candy and confectionery, United Kingdom, 219.7%; certain silk fabrics over 30 inches, United Kingdom, 212.4%; long staple cotton, from Egypt and British India, but transhipped from the United Kingdom, 1,283.1% and 1,128.1%. From Canada, fresh pork, 237.9%; hams, 157.9%; cream, 200%; dried milk, 125.5%; New Zealand, dried peas, 477.3%; Argentina, cattle hides, 173.6%.

UNIVERSE CLARIFIED BY BELGIAN SAVANT

Abbe Lemaitre Lectures on Atom and Expansion at Catholic University.

The riddle of the universe—space and time, when it started and where it is going—was described last night by Abbe Georges Lemaitre, distinguished Belgian priest and scientist, before a large and brilliant audience at Catholic University.

The idea of a universe with walled space became as absurd, after Father Lemaitre completed his discourse, as the erstwhile belief that the world was flat. With irony and diagram he ridiculed a flat-topped universe of space, where there might be a falling-off place and showed that the universe has been expanding and will continue to expand until there is ultimate destruction.

"The universe began before the creation of the earth, but not much longer before," Father Lemaitre said. "In the beginning there was one huge atom. This atom began breaking up, creating space. The atoms are continuing to break and space is expanding. The time will eventually arrive when every atom will be infinitely small and this will mark the beginning of the end."

100 Billion Years to Go.

The end, however, is so remote that there is need to worry over it, Father Lemaitre assured his audience. He spoke in terms of hundreds of millions of years—from the time of creation until the universe is finally through with its work. The universe, he estimated, has been going on for about 10,000,000,000 years and will continue for at least 100,000,000,000 more.

Describing his theory of the cosmic ray—the most powerful in existence—the scientist traced its origin back beyond the beginning of time after showing that these rays do not come from the stars or the sun. This cosmic force, he showed, has waged a battle through the ages with gravity which works in the opposite direction. The cosmic force, he explained, has fought successfully to break up the fragments of the universe, while gravity has tried to hold them together.

Gravity was the strongest force at first, and it was at this time that the universe was concentrated in one huge mass, the priest pointed out. But since then, and at the present time, the cosmic force is the dominating one and the primeval atom has been split into many pieces. These fragments are flying apart at ever-increasing speed and at thousands of miles per second. Hence the explanation of the Belgian scientist's now world-famous theory that space is expanding.

Original Atom Unexplained.

Father Lemaitre observed that in view of the fact that the first atom existed before the beginning of time and space, that the world began before the beginning of time and space. Beyond that the priest refuses to explore, and strongly infers that it is useless to investigate. The origin of that original atom he can not explain.

In addition to his education abroad, Father Lemaitre is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was introduced last night by Ambassador Paul May, of Belgium. The Right Rev. Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University, opened the meeting with a few words of welcome to Father Lemaitre, to the ambassador and the latter's wife and to the more than 500 persons present.

committee decides to pursue, a report will be ready for the full House Appropriations Committee by tomorrow morning, Chairman Byrns said last night. A report to the House will be made immediately, and the matter taken up on the floor tomorrow or Saturday.

"I am advised that no one will suffer if this bill is passed by next week," the Tennesseean said, after conferences with Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of District Commissioners, and Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby.

Following a meeting of the board yesterday, at which it was decided to continue providing relief for Washington's destitute, pending passage of the bill, by borrowing money from private sources, Dr. Reichelderfer and Gen. Crosby called on both Representative Byrns and Senator Frederick Hale (Republican), Maine, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Senator Hale assured them the bill will be given precedence over all other matters when it comes from the House.

Should the House Appropriations Committee fail to detach the tax refund issue from the first deficiency bill, the measure probably will be tied up when it goes to the Senate. Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, author of the amendment providing Congressional review of refunds over $20,000, is not ready to surrender without a fight.

He said last night an effort will be made to meet objections raised against the original amendment, and at the same time provide for a review of tax refunds.

So far as the House is concerned the present refund provision is believed to be dead. Democratic leaders are convinced of the futility of offering it again in view of the emphatic refusal to override the veto.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, chairman of the Senate District appropriations subcommittee, yesterday expressed assurance that Congress will reenact the relief item in ample time to satisfy exigencies of the local situation.

Meanwhile, with the promise of adequate borrowed money, local relief authorities planned to provide for approximately 3,350 persons now engaged on made work projects, in this Saturday's $23,000 pay roll. Commissioners expressed belief that the present emergency will be successfully stemmed.

'Flop House' Sponger's $900 Loss Starts Quiz

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 25 (A.P.). When he walked into the police station and reported the theft of $900 in cash and a promissory note for $350, Ernest Heabke, of Lester, Iowa, a municipal "flop house" lodger, was held for investigation.

LEWIS J. SELZNICK, FILM PIONEER, DIES

Producer Who Made Clara Kimball Young Famous Expires at 62.

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A career synonymous with the motion picture industry from its first commercial beginnings ended here today in the death of Lewis J. Selznick at the age of 62.

The veteran producer succumbed to diabetes in his apartment within a few hours after one of his three sons, Myron, completed a hurried trip across the continent to be at his bedside. Myron Selznick was returning from London when he received word of his father's illness.

The other sons, David, also a producer, and Howard, with the producer's wife, Mrs. Florence Selznick, also were at the bedside.

It was announced Rabbi Edgar Magnin will conduct funeral services tomorrow.

Honorary pallbearers will include Louis B. Mayer, Joseph M. Schenck, Carl Laemlle, sr., and close friends outside the motion picture industry.

The son of Russian immigrants, Selznick quit school as a boy and went to work in a New York jewelry shop. Before that phase ended, he owned stores in New York and Pittsburgh. He became interested in motion pictures, then a truly "infant industry," while he was trying to sell jewelry to P. A. Powers, a producer.

Among his stars were Clara Kimball Young and Norma Talmadge. The company produced such well-remembered films as "Old Dutch," with Lew Fields; "The Boss," with Alice Brady and Holbrook Blinn, and "Trilby," with Clara Kimball Young and Wilton Lackaye.

The fame of Miss Young and Miss Talmadge grew under Selznick's management, and one after another, Olive Thomas, Elsie Janis, Eugene O'Brien, Owen Moore, Marie Boro, Elaine Hammerstein and Corinne Griffith were added.

Selznick retired from active picture production several years ago, devoting most of his time to managing his large real estate holdings.

Rochefort Says Beauty Shop Convicts Stillman

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Counsel for Luc Rochefort, who is suing James A. Stillman for alienation of his wife's affections and for libel, said in an affidavit filed in supreme court today that "it is ridiculous to suppose that Mr. Stillman financed beauty parlors for Mrs. Marjorie Rochefort if there were no meretricious relations."

The affidavit was filed by Alfred L. Becker before Justice Edward Riegelmann in Brooklyn. It was in support of his motion seeking to have the court order Stillman's lawyers to produce certain documents and papers pertaining to the case.

BILLIONS ARE URGED FOR FARMER RELIEF

headway as possible in the present Congress, sponsors of the legislation feel it would be sure to receive a Hoover veto.

Outstanding in the 25-page Robinson bill introduced yesterday is provision for a $1,000,000,000 Government agency—the "Emergency Agricultural Refinance Corporation"—to lend up to $10,000 each to individual farm owners on first or second mortgage security, provided the total mortgages do not exceed 75 per cent of the value of the property.

In addition the resources of the Federal Treasury would be placed squarely back of the Federal Land Banks, so they might take over all sound first mortgages offered by any creditor who needs to liquidate, establish interest rates at a 5 per cent maximum and extend the payments of worthy borrowers. The Joint Stock Land Banks would be taken over by the Federal system.

Taking the offensive in the fight on the domestic allotment bill, Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, told the Senate Agriculture Committee that "unless something is done for the American farmer we will have a revolution in the countryside in less than twelve months."

John A. Simpson, president of the Farmers Union, said "the biggest and finest crop of revolutions you ever saw is sprouting all over this country right now."

O'Neal expressed whole-hearted approval of the bill designed to establish prewar prices on basic agricultural products, but Simpson proposed major alterations to make it guarantee to the farmer his cost of production. To this end he advocated that all buyers of farm goods be licensed.

Talk of inflation of the currency was heard in the committee as well as on the Senate floor, with Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, sponsor of the free silver legislation, in the forefront of both discussions.

O'Neal told the committee he felt that inflation is the "fundamental" need of agriculture, although the allotment bill would go far to "restore faith and confidence."

Blanton on Warpath.

Simpson brought a laugh by exclaiming that what is needed is "a good supply of silver, plenty of paper money and maybe a sprinkling of counterfeit."

In the House Marvin Jones, of Texas, sponsor of the allotment bill, said the principle it contains is practically the same as that of a wheat measure employed successfully in England.

An attack on the Agriculture Department's methods was made by Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, who told his colleagues it would be "to the best interest of the farmer if you abolished three-fourths of the bureaus of the Agriculture Department."

600 STRIKERS BACK ON FEDERAL WORK

Steamfitters and Engineers Reach Agreement in Union Dispute.

A temporary agreement between disputing steamfitters and hoisting engineers yesterday enabled 600 idle workers to return to their jobs on the new Postoffice Department Building at Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

The men, workers in various building trades, resumed work which they left off last Friday when the steamfitters and hoisting engineers disputed the jurisdiction of two motor generator machines which were used for welding pipes.

The abatement of the strike of the hoisting engineers was made possible when the disputing unions agreed to a removal of the generators from the building and to continue their work on the building. By lifting the necessary materials the engineer enabled the return of the other building tradesmen.

The issue of the strike of the hoisting engineers has yet to be settled, and the international unions of the respective trades may leave final settlement to the decision of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor or to conciliation by the Department of Labor.

Curtis Is Praised On 73d Birthday

Members of Both Parties Join in Tribute to Vice President.

(Associated Press.)

Vice President Curtis, who will terminate 38 years of congressional service March 4, was 73 years old yesterday, and colleagues would not let him forget it. Senator Watson paid tribute to the Kansan, saying he "may not want to know the day, but the hands have to be turned back on the dial of time and the truth must be known."

Watson said Curtis had served his country with "unflagging zeal and great fidelity" and wished him "wealth, happiness and prosperity in whatever he may do and wherever he may go."

Sitting silently in his accustomed place, Curtis also heard Senators Sheppard, Texas, and Walsh, Massachusetts, Democrats, join in the tribute.

DEFENSE IS BEGUN IN TRIAL OF CLARK

State's Attorney Is Quizzed on Charges Involving Former Official.

State's Attorney Stedman Prescott was the first witness placed on the stand yesterday by the defense in the trial of Berry E. Clark, former clerk to the Montgomery County Commissioners, on charges of embezzlement of $426 in county funds in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md. The State rested its case shortly before 3 p. m.

"Mr. Prescott," asked F. Barnard Welsh, of defense counsel, "you have had here before the jury a lot of personal checks from the account of Mr. Berry E. Clark. Would you tell us how they came into your possession?"

"They were received when they were brought before the grand jury. I think Mr. Bond brought them before the grand jury," Mr. Prescott answered.

"Who is Mr. Bond?" Mr. Welsh asked.

"I object, your honor," Prescott said. Mr. Welsh and Mr. Prescott then approached the bench to discuss the objection, which was overruled. Mr. Prescott then stated that Mr. Bond was the auditor who was summoned before the grand jury to bring the checks.

Hagner's Testimony.

Mr. Prescott stated, on questioning by Mr. Welsh, that he was acquainted with Robert D. Hagner, a county commissioner, but objected when he was asked what other office Mr. Hagner had held. Mr. Prescott held that the defense was attempting to bring out testimony regarding an audit made by Mr. Hagner, which had been ruled out by the court.

Mr. Prescott then proceeded to cross-examine himself. He said that his reason for not calling Mr. Bond in this case was that he had not considered his evidence relevant and that the only evidence Mr. Bond could offer was the total of the checks which the jury could add up for itself. He said he had placed Mr. Bond's name on the indictment paper because he felt the defense to be entitled to know the names of witnesses who appeared before the grand jury.

Mr. Hagner testified that he did not know of the existence of a bank account maintained by Mr. Clark and that he had understood money collected by the office had been turned over to the county treasurer each day. He said that when he had audited the accounts he had found items appearing on the miscellaneous receipts book of Clark's office also on the books of the county treasurer. The defense also presented eight prominent citizens who testified to Clark's good reputation.

May Get to Jury Today.

The State rested its case after lengthy questioning of Lacy Shaw, president of the Montgomery County commissioners. Mr. Shaw testified that he nor the board had authorized the keeping of an account for clerk's funds by Clark and did not know he was depositing the funds in the bank. He said no check had been made on Clark because the board trusted him implicitly.

John Lewis, assistant treasurer, was placed on the stand by the State in an effort to show that only $16 had been paid to the treasurer by Clark from the receipts of the franchise tax.

It is expected that the defense will rest its case today and there is a possibility that the case will be in the hands of the jury by nightfall.

New Yorker Near Death of Injuries

Run Down Trying to Flag Truck After Traffic Crash in Virginia.

Crisobal Jimenez, of New York City, is in a critical condition in the Quantico, Va., Marine Hospital after being struck by a truck Tuesday night on the Washington-Richmond highway near Woodbridge, Va.

According to State Policeman James Clark, who investigated the accident, the car in which Jimenez was a passenger, driven by Maurice Piechot, also of New York City, was in a collision with an automobile driven by Elvis Winston, of Mount Vernon, N. Y. Jimenez was hit trying to flag a truck of the Virginia Motor Express Co., driven by Jennings Elder, of Richmond, Va.

Clark stated yesterday that Jimenez was suffering a possible skull fracture, internal injuries and a fractured leg.

Woman, Sneezing Three Days, in Slight Respite

Princeton, Ky., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—With slight relief obtained during the night, Mrs. Lonnie Dickson, 48, a plumber's wife, who has been sneezing almost continuously since 5 a. m. Monday, was reported by physicians to be in a serious condition today.

who identified himself as Homer Shropshire. They later raided his apartment on the third floor of 1107 Vermont avenue northwest, where evidence was seized by the officers.

Following other clews police discovered several other places in Washington, where they charge he kept girls working for him in the same manner. Police said the girls said they were forced to work under threats against their lives.

According to stories told police each girl was forced to bring $10 each week day and $15 on Saturday and Sunday. If they failed, police said, they were beaten. The girl who appealed to police, said that she escaped once, but was brought back and beaten. She also told police that during one three-weeks period she earned more than $200, which was taken from her.

All the girls in the ring allegedly run by Shropshire, police said, are under 20 years of age. Letters found on his person when arrested included several from girls in which pitiful pleas were made for him to help them regain their self-respect by marriage.

A man identifying himself as James Henry Melcher, was also arrested in connection with the case. He is being held at the First Precinct station for the Department of Justice. Lena Melcher and Alice Virginia Border were taken into custody with Melcher when found in his apartment in the 1000 block of K street northwest. Police said they would be held as witnesses.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

ONE THOUSAND homes would make a fair sized little city. One thousand replies are the approximate number Dr. Axel H. Oxholm's National Wood Utilization Committee received within a few days after the Federal Diary published the story on "How to Judge a House?"

RILEY.

The letters, totaling 486 the morning after the story appeared, asked for copies of the booklet issued by the committee. The copies sold for 10 cents each. Requests are still being received.

Some conclusions can be drawn from this flood of reaction to this type article:

1. Newspaper readers are still home-minded.

2. Readers now want to know just where their home-buying dollar is going and what will be given in exchange.

3. They are anxious to hear of the standardization so heartily endorsed by real estate men, construction men and material men.

4. All this interest in the face of what had been reported as limited activity in home-acquiring. Washington and area may see a rush for well-built homes this spring.

5. We have no check on the names of those who wrote for booklets but a column designed for Government employes evidently is read also by many who are not in Federal service.

At any rate, the first premise—newspaper readers are still home-minded—stands.

THE principal value of "How to Judge a House" lies in the fact that nationally known architects, builders, real estate operators, and engineers, representing their respective trade and professional associations, sponsor this bulletin. They are members of the subcommittee appointed by the Secretary of Commerce for this purpose. N. Max Dunning, Fellow of the American Institute of Architects and representing that body on this subcommittee is authority for the statement that already millions of dollars have been saved to prospective home owners through information furnished in this book.

This book is not only of interest to those contemplating purchasing a house but also to those purchasing materials. The house is the largest single investment in the life of the average man. If he makes a poor investment he will likely suffer financial embarrassment many years to come. Repair charges will eat into his income and what was once believed by him to be a source of happiness may turn out to be a misfortune. Thousands of foreclosures have been a direct result of poor construction and inability of the owner to keep up payments.

Everyone catering to the consumer's dollar will therefore be interested in this subject because if the house venture proves economical then the house owner will have more money left for other expenditures.

Set him free——

Fedd spied an old acquaintance lolling at the rail. He was a globe-trotter of no mean repute. He knew some French, perhaps enough to help him with his note. He would ask him. He did.

His friend did know some French but not enough beyond a few simple words but he would try. That was fine. Swarmi produced his envelope, started unfolding, for it was polite to hand the note open to his friend who was going to the trouble to assist him.

The wind was coming directly onto starboard and Swarmi and his friend stood at the port rail. That was too bad.

HURLEY, Wis., Jan. 25 (Special). Panting as though his big heart would throb through his weather-beaten old body, Washka, the homing dog, gift to Swarmi Fedd, now of Washington, D. C., almost shed tears here late tonight when he realized he had lost previous moments on the dash to the National Capital to attend the grand ball at the Shoreham Hotel the evening of February 2. Tonight found Washka many miles farther from Washington than last night because of the lapse in his homing memory.

Washka is expected, if he can complete the dash in time, to assist Swarmi Fedd to "put on the dog" at ball, formal, of course.

Dog specialists along the route declare the only way Washka can make up lost time now is to keep his nose off the ground and hit only the high spots along the way. There is word even that Washka will hitchhike.

Will he get to the Grand Ball?

Our own jigsaw puzzle. Save the pieces seven days and you'll find Washka, the wonder dog, traveling on his own from Sitka to be at the Diary ball, Shoreham, February 2. Meet Section, No. 1.

"A LETTER from a relative in Peoria, Ill., inspires one to turn it over to you, hoping it may reach the Sight Vein, so without introduction may I quote friend brother-in-law," says A. Green.

"Presume have told you previous to having given up our little car. Sure we have missed it, but not so but what we have gone on living as usual otherwise. Our street car company now issue card passes, good whenever shown, ride as often as far as you please for $1 per week. One pass does for us three and we get as many as 40 rides some weeks on that. Some Sundays I ride as much as four hours in the afternoon on it for an outing.

"There is an idea, Mr. Riley, for Washington. As a street car rider that dollar pass, good whenever shown, ride as often, as far as you please—say now—what about a little note in the diary. Seems too liberal for a straight-laced town like this one here—still and all—George, it would make a fine ride available."

Very limited number of choice seats left for Swarmi Fedd's grand ball at the Shoreham the evening of February 2. Time was when we heard a lot about the postoffice pens, what poor writing instruments they were, with their caked and dried ink and their untidy inkwells and blotters rubbed thin.

You'll hardly find that condition today, at least in first-class postoffices. Take Franklin Station, for example. Sadie Johnson makes it her business, as often as she thinks it necessary, to replace the old penstocks, points, fill the wells and replenish the blotter supply. Her work draws much comment.

OUR OWN ? BOX

Q.—Why does Paul J. Croghan, Commerce, wear an alarm clock on his desk?

A.—We don't know why, but we do know it goes off promptly every pay day, just about this hour.

Q.—Is it all right to wear my new evening gown to Swarmi Fedd's grand ball at the Shoreham February 2?

A.—Yes, if you don't let a congressman see you.

Q.—What do you think of the "New Deal" and its prospects?

A.—We always said change will do us all good, if we can get enough change. So many "new deals" end up in a game of shuffleboard.

Q.—Is there anything to the report that some of the electrical fixtures in the new House Office Building are 18-karat gold?

A.—We've been assured that "all that glisters is not gold," by no less personage than David Lynn, architect of the Capitol. Mr. Lynn says the "gold" chandeliers are bronze. (See picture.)

Q.—Will there be any holding of hands at the Federal Diary Ball at the Shoreham February 2?

A.—There should be, since there'll be a "full house."

Q.—How is Swarmi Fedd's name pronounced in native tongue?

A.—Pronounce the first part with the first two letters silent, thus "Ah, me." The "F" in Fedd is sounded as "H." Thus, "Ah, me head."

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

I WOULD like to expound on the tunic dress today, because I think it is a much neglected item—in style magazines and chatter, if not in the wardrobe. Heim, of Paris, for example, has been making them for years, positively years, my dear, and selling them, too—quite naturally, or he wouldn't continue to make 'em. And there they go on and on being sold to and worn by elegant women, and neglected editorially!

Now the tunic is one of the most ancient as well as modern of garments. Strangely enough, it is today as when it was first worn, in both general design and in the manner in which it is worn. That is, today the tunic is never worn on the street without a coat—not being considered complete for outdoors without its accompanying coat. In the days when it was the principal garment for Roman men and women, it was worn indoors—but covered by the "palla" for women, and the "toga" for men, whenever worn outside the house. Tunics in those days varied in length, just as they do today. And were usually worn with a girdle—as today. In Greece the tunic was called the "chiton." And the sleeves, if any, were always short—here being practically the only variation, for the tunic of today has quite often a long sleeve.

Today's tunic can be almost any contrasting color or material from the skirt and coat with which it is worn. Mme. Heim presides over her comfortable and friendly little salon in a tunic frock of cream colored satin—the skirt of black. Lighter colors become her—but she could hardly receive friends and clients in a white satin dress, could she? When the white satin is a tunic, it is perfect—and a three quarters length black coat completely covers the tunic and makes of her outfit an elegant tailleur when she leaves the shop!

For variation, for practicability, for flattering lines and color, for its undisputed and unvariable chic—give me a tunic dress every time. Any style that has endured several centuries is pretty certain not to go completely out of style!

'Sposin' you get one spot on your frock? Are you afraid to tackle it yourself, so have to send the whole thing to the cleaner's? And you haven't a personal maid these days, and Collette used to save her wages twice over a month just because she didn't send your things to be cleaned so often! Well, Dah-ray has a new French maid for you, and she will cost you just 6 cents—one 3-cent stamp on an envelope addressed to yourself, and another on an envelope addressed to the Dare Department of The Post. In fact, this leaflet—yes, 'tis a leaflet, this French maid—is even better than a maid, because it doesn't eat, and because it contains all of the secrets of various maids of every nationality—have you ever noticed how one maid usually has one or two secrets up her sleeve? Well, turn this leaflet over to the maid you have, or study it yourself—and save hours of time and many, many dollars in the upkeep of your wardrobe.

* * * *

So many requests for designs—watch Saturday for a special announcement about them, and meanwhile send in your request when you send for a leaflet. What kind of a Dah-ray design to paint or embroider would you like?

What Today Means

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 11:50 a. m. and from 4:15 p. m. to 5:10 p. m.

A lack of cooperation would seem to be the order of the day. You will experience difficulty in getting people to "pull along" with you, and if you are an executive with others working under you, you will have more than one difference between employes to iron out. Affairs of the heart should progress without hitch.

The child born on this January 26 will have a good deal of common sense. He will tend strictly to his own business and will not be found mixed up in the generally expected childish arguments and scraps. These children will always show extreme patience in all that they do, and they will be surprisingly ambitious.

If January 26 is the date of your birth, you are a very romantic person. If you are a woman, you are the type who dreams of being carried forcibly away by a knight in shining armour. Be careful not to misinterpret the attentions and kindnesses that those of the opposite sex pay you; marriage is not always the ultimate goal. You are inclined to build too many castles in the air. It is good to have dreams and visions, but we live in a practical world, and these dreams and visions must be of a kind that can be rendered practical and workable. Yours is a highly imaginative mind that seeks and must have expression. You could attain great happiness if you followed writing or painting as a career or as a hobby. Music means a great deal in your life. You find it soothing and comfortable, and often it carries you far beyond the confines of this material world.

Born on January 26 your married life will in all probability not be without considerable friction. It is difficult for you to conform yourself, even in a small measure, to the will of another. If you are a man, you would no doubt chafe under the added responsibility of having a wife and family to care for. You are a great walker; some of your best thoughts and inspirations come to you when you are out by yourself taking a stroll. You are restless; occasionally you have fits of rather extreme nervousness.

Successful people born on January 26:

Cornelius N. Bliss, New York merchant.

Hattie Tyng Griswold, author and poet.

George Francis Atkinson, botanist.

Mabel O. Wright, author.

Frank Orren Lowden, Governor of Illinois.

Cleveland Dodge, capitalist.

Culbertson on Bridge

571.

"SIGN-OFF" BIDS.

AS a rule, every time a player speaks, his partner quite properly infers some added strength, and is, in turn, often encouraged to bid further.

It is true that there are certain hands such as Spades 9 8 7 5 4 3, Hearts 7, Diamonds 10 8 3 2, Clubs 8 2, where a player is sorely tempted to "rescue" partner's one notrump with a bid of two spades. Obviously, the hand is worthless at any bid except two spades where one can hope to establish three winners. The trouble is that partner has no means of distinguishing clearly between the "strength" and "weakness," and with some such hopeless hands, the more the player bids, the more his partner, whose hand is quite likely stronger than usual, is apt to rebid until they throw the cards at each other's face. If all Takeouts of two meant weakness, then partnerships would lose the benefit of "strength inferences" on thousands of hands—even a greater evil.

For this reason, in the Culbertson System it is a fundamental principle that, with a few definite exceptions, every bid is an encouraging bid, and that a pass is, as a rule, the only "rescue." The only exceptions occur in rare cases where the "rescue" inference is so clear that no possible misunderstanding can arise between partners.

Some of these "rescue" situations arise after a Penalty Double of partner's suit bid of one, or after a Penalty Double of a low contract by partner himself, other occurs in a group of bids known as "Sign-Off" bids. A "Sign-Off" bid is a warning to partner that the hand, though previously bid, is below his minimum expectations in honor strength and that any further bidding by him is at his own risk and peril.

A "Sign-Off" bid is recognized by the fact that (a) the Responding Hand has bid and then rebid its suit at least twice; and, at the same time (b) the "Sign-Off" bid is always in the range of three-bids in the suit.

The "Sign-Off" bid applies equally to major or minor suits and is generally made when responding to partner's notrump, although it is also used after partner's suit bids. It should not show less than a six-card suit, unless the hand is a two-suiter. In all cases, however, it should have at least ½ honortrick. Hands that are too weak to rebid even once, without a serious penalty, should not be bid at all.

The following procedure illustrates the "Sign-Off" bids:

South	North
1NT	2♠ (so far the inference is strength)
2NT	3♠ (Sign-Off!)
or
1♢	1♠
1NT	2♠ (so far the inference is strength)
2NT	3♠ (Sign-Off!)

North warns partner that he holds something like:

Spades	K 10 8 6 4 3
Hearts	5
Diamonds	9 8 7 4
Clubs	8 4

If North were stronger, he would bid either four spades over two notrump or three notrump, depending on distribution. He also could pass two notrump. Similarly, with a minor suit "Sign-Off:"

South	North
1♠	2♢
2♡	3♢ (Sign-Off)

North shows something like:

Spades	7
Hearts	8
Diamonds	Q J 10 9 8 5 4
Clubs	Q 7 4 2

North, if strong, could have chosen either four diamonds, three notrump or a Raise in one of partner's suits. He also could have passed. Hence, the inference of a "rescue" is quite clear.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Extradition Fought In Ilsley Murder

Removal of Accused Man From Boston Opposed on Identity Plea.

Boston, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Opposition to the removal of George Crawford, Negro, to Virginia to answer charges of murdering two white women there developed when hearing on a requisition of the Governor of Virginia opened today. Attending the hearing, which was before Assistant Attorney General Stephen D. Bacigalupo, was William Monroe Carter, national secretary of the Equal Rights League, and appearing for Crawford as counsel were J. Weston Allen, former Attorney General of Massachusetts, and Butler R. Wilson, a Boston lawyer.

Mr. Allen indicated he might ask a postponement of a week or more to produce witnesses against the objection of John Galleher, Commonwealth Attorney of Loudoun County, Va.

Counsel for Crawford entered routine denial of the identity of Crawford as the wanted fugitive from Virginia, or that he was in Virginia on or about January 13, 1932, when Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Nina G. Buckner, were slain on Mrs. Ilsley's estate.

Official's Conviction Upheld.

Philadelphia, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The State superior court today upheld the conviction in the Butler County court of Bertram L. Succop, former director of supplies of Pittsburgh, on charges of irregularities in office.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

POISONOUS SPIDERS.

NINETY-NINE per cent of the fear of spiders, scorpions, tarantulas, Gila monsters and snakes is without foundation. A few snakes are poisonous. Most of them are not. A Gila monster, practically speaking, is about as inoffensive as a cake of soap. Most of the stories about scorpions and tarantulas are pure fabrications.

In North America there is but one spider that merits any thought. Dr. Emil Bogen tells us that if we would concentrate our enmity on this spider and make friends with all others we would be better off. I am not certain but that he would be willing to declare a truce with all snakes except rattlers, moccasins and corals, taking them under our protective wings and thus release our dislikes, that we may concentrate on one variety of spider.

Dr. Bogen has spent some of his energy for years in studying the situation with relation to one spider, the Black Widow. He has found records of 17 fatalities due to bites from Black Widows. The record from smallpox is not much worse than that. He finds that a fair number of persons are made sick each year because of bites from this spider.

The abdominal pain and rigidity of the abdominal muscles caused by this bite have caused more than one surgeon to operate for nonexistent appendicitis on more than one patient.

This spider is found in more than half of the country and Dr. Bogen has located nearly 400 bites that were serious enough to cause the cases to get into medical literature. Certainly there must have been hundreds of thousands of other cases not reported by physicians.

The symptoms of severe poisoning by this spider are shock, pain, nausea, vomiting, fever, and general muscular rigidity. The lower pain and swelling may be too trifling to attract much attention.

The treatment of a Black Widow bite is local and constitutional. A simple, soothing dressing may be applied locally. To incise the wound or cauterize it or injure it in any way by operation or strong chemicals does more harm than good. In the constitutional treatment whisky and gin should not be used. They do more harm than good.

The pain may call for opiates or other sedatives. The fever may be relieved by baths or by antipyretics. Some cases need special puncture. Dr. Bogen thinks the blood serum of a person who has recovered from a bite is curative.

YOU ARE TO BLAME.

Miss 22 writes: Please tell me how to get control of myself. I am so miserable I would rather die than keep on suffering inwardly like I am. I can hardly concentrate on my work. I seem to worry so much that I am just about going round in circles. The reason for my worrying is all self-centered. I worry because I worry myself sick, and I just can't stand it any longer. If I hear any sad news it upsets me terribly and I can't control myself. I get headaches, feel miserable, and keep on thinking of myself selfishly. Please, doctor, how can I train myself? What's the matter with me? I am in good physical condition otherwise.

REPLY.

You seem to have hit the nail on the head. You are the cause of your trouble. You must also be the cure.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the all-important subject of Reducing. Miss Pierce urges readers to exercise to slender grace.

DIET and exercise make a swell reducing combination. Diet alone may leave the flesh a bit flabby. Exercise alone may not work off weight fast enough. Together, however, they trim down excess weight and do a good job of hardening up the muscles.

While strenuous and swift reducing may leave the face looking drawn and haggard, the muscles flabby, the hair dry and brittle, a gradual course such as I have outlined in this series of articles actually sends beauty up the while the scales go down. That's why exercise is important. It stimulates the circulation, and the blood stream does much beautifying.

General Exercise.

For those who are overweight generally, the following exercises will help. If you are ten to twenty pounds overweight, with the excess pretty well distributed over the entire body, the diets outlined previously and the exercise that follow should do the necessary whittling down. If your troubles is "spots" watch tomorrow's column. If you are not accustomed to exercise, start with very simple ones to begin with and gradually try the harder ones.

Stretching.

Stretching is good for what ails you. Begin in the morning before getting out of bed. Stretch the right foot, way way down. The right arm up overhead. Now the left foot and left arm. Now both. Pull. Pretend that arms and legs are having a tug of war. Feel that tugging at the waist. Repeat it ten times.

Now out of bed, before an open window and some deep, deep breathing. In to the count of seven, out to a count of four.

Raise arms to shoulder level. Shoot them outward and back ten times. Then upward—pull. Now back flinging. Now forward. Excellent for arms, bust and shoulders if you do them with gusto.

Bending and Twisting.

Stand with feet firm and a few inches apart, arms on hips. Bend trunk forward until back is straight and at right angles with body. Back to position. Now try to bend trunk backward. Slowly and without strain. Repeat five times.

Back to position. Twist trunk to right, touching right finger tips to left toe. Back to position, and twist to left. Repeat five times.

Leg Work.

Running in place. Bend elbows. Clench fists. Lift each leg as high as possible as though running but remain in place.

Walk a few miles a day, breathing deeply, head and chin up, feet and arms moving briskly.

Tomorrow we exercise for those troublesome spots.

HOUSE OF MARYLAND VOTES REPEAL, 76-32

Tobacco Belt Senators Ask Ritchie to Be Lenient on Taxing Leaf.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 25.—While the Senate busied itself with informal conference on controversial phases of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie's tax program, wet sentiment in the House was sounded today with a roll-call vote of the eighteenth amendment to the States.

As might be expected of a Free State body, the repeal resolution won by a vote of 76 to 32.

The House Republicans generally were against the resolution, but their ranks were swelled by a few Democrats. George L. Edmunds, of Montgomery County, explained his vote against the resolution by saying that it didn't mean anything, as Congress was already pledged to resubmit the question.

Aside from the repeal vote, the House session was featureless.

Four insurance bills also were introduced in the House, one of them to provide that the forms of life, health, and accident insurance policies should be approved by the Insurance Commissioner.

Three Informal Conferences.

This week's session has been studded with three informal senatorial conferences, not counting a meeting of the finance committee today. The series was opened last night, when Gov. Ritchie and Maj. E. Brooke Lee, of the State roads commission, called the Democratic senators together in the governor's office.

At this session the governor assured the Senate that the administration would do battle in the Legislature for the roads commission's privilege of spending the gas tax money. Some of this money is to be diverted to the county roads, and Gov. Ritchie believes that it should be expended by the commission. Set against this proposal is the determination of the County Commissioners Association that the funds shall be spent by the commissioners of each county.

Confer on Tobacco Tax.

Another meeting was the conference of the southern Maryland senators, reinforced by Senator Joseph L. Donovan, of Howard County, with Gov. Ritchie on the tobacco tax question. The senators asked Gov. Ritchie to be as lenient as possible in providing new taxes on tobacco, pointing out that manufacturers had threatened to pass the tax back to the growers, who inhabit southern Maryland.

The third meeting was that of the insurgent senators who are backing the County Commissioners Association in their fight to have the gas tax funds sent to the county boards. The existence of this meeting was denied by the senators, but they were gathered in one room with the door closed.

Alexandria's Police School Ends With Diploma Awards

Crime Prevention Course Was Given Under Direction of Capt. John S. Arnold; Mayor Davis of Manassas Among Speakers at Banquet.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Police School of Alexandria, which has been conducted under the auspices of the Virginia League of Municipalities and the Virginia Police Executives Association and directed by Capt. John S. Arnold, of the Alexandria police, celebrated its close last night by a banquet at the George Mason Hotel.

The course of instruction included lectures in police duties at fires and accidents, patrol duty, traffic problems, laws of arrest, crime and crime classification, homicide and larceny, crime prevention, and juvenile delinquency. Capt. Arnold was assisted by John M. Keith, special agent of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, Washington.

There were several speakers, the first being Mayor Harry P. Davis, of Manassas, who also is president of the Virginia League of Municipalities. He stated that Virginia has been divided, for police school purposes, into seventeen zones, of which fourteen have completed the course. In the fourteen schools completing the course there were 991 registrations, and 880 officers have completed the course and received certificates. In Alexandria, which is in the ninth zone, there were 55 registrations, and 50 officers completed the course.

Mayor L. P. Daniels, of Falls Church, presented Capt. Arnold with a silver cigar lighter on behalf of the authorities of Falls Church, and a cartoon of Capt. Arnold, which, he said, was executed by a "distinguished artist," who had made a few errors, such as placing the shield on the captain's cap upside down and showing the dapper officer as badly in need of a shave.

Other speakers were William F. Cocke, town manager of Manassas; Councilman E. C. Davison and Michael T. Dwyer, of Alexandria; John M. Keith, of the Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice; John Little, assistant to Mr. Keith; Roger C. Sullivan, city treasurer of Alexandria; City Manager Wallace Lawrence, and Mayor Edmund F. Ticer. Mr. Lawrence and Mayor Ticer then presented certificates to the following graduates:

Lieut. Heber J. Thompson, Sergts. George F. Everly, Frederick L. Kaus and Lawrence E. Padgett, Detective Sergt. Edward Sims and Detective James A. Bayliss, Corporals Clarence J. McClary, Donald J. ARLINGTON WASTE DENIED BY KELLEY

Member of County Board Replies to Charges Before Women Voters.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Speaking at the January meeting of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County yesterday in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon, Lyman M. Kelley, member of the county board, answered charges of extravagance on the part of the board, made by what he termed "the many alleged secret committees that seem to be afraid to come out into the open."

Outlining the accomplishments of the board during the past year, Mr. Kelley denied it had been extravagant and declared that a grand jury investigation of the county government would be welcomed by the entire board.

Emery N. Hosmer, chairman of the special committee from the Bar Association appointed to make a study of the county government and to make a report with recommendations looking to a reduction in taxes at its March meeting, outlined its work. He said the work of the committee is divided into three parts, first seeking to learn why salaries can not be reduced; second, that a reassessment of real estate in Arlington County be made, and, third, that there be a reduction in utility rates.

Mr. Hosmer said he wished to correct the impression which appears to be broadcast that the Bar Association committee would hinder the work of the county board.

He was represented by former State Senator Frank L. Ball.

Montgomery's Gas Cut Will Continue

Maryland Orders Companies to Keep Lower Rate Through June.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 25.—The Public Service Commission today ordered the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light Companies of Montgomery County to continue in force through June an 8½ per cent discount on bills which was ordered effective last August, until this month.

The commission was notified by the companies that while the companies do not feel that the continuation of the temporary discount is warranted, in order "to cooperate with the commission to the fullest extent in avoiding costly litigation" the boards of directors have authorized acceptance of an order continuing the discount through June.

It was asked that the concession "shall not prejudice the claims of either of the companies in the pending valuation case or in any other proceeding, or be considered as a recognition on the part of the companies that their rates are in any way unreasonable."

Ballston Citizens Pick G. E. Payne as President

Grover E. Payne was elected president of the Ballston Citizens Association at its annual meeting held in the firemen's hall last night. Other officers elected are Thomas J. Crack, first vice president; John C. Conner, second vice president; Mrs. Lyda Smith, secretary, and Mrs. Alice Thomas, treasurer.

Charles F. Kincheloe, a member of the Arlington County board of public welfare, and Grover E. Payne, campaign chairman of the citizens' relief committee, addressed the meeting and urged that funds be raised to meet the many urgent demands made upon the welfare board to aid the needy in the county.

Hoard Proves Counterfeit.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Leo F. Chartrand almost found the pot at the end of the rainbow today. While clearing land he discovered $4,240 in bills in an old coffee can under a stump. Close inspection, however, proved the money to be counterfeit, so he turned it over to United States Secret Service officers.

Winebrenner to Return 10 Per Cent of Salary

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 25.—Following the lead of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, David C. Winebrenner 3d, secretary of state, today said that he would turn back 10 per cent of his salary to the State treasury.

Gov. Ritchie's budget provides for a one-tenth slash in all salaries not fixed by the constitution. Although his own pay of $4,500 per year is so fixed, he has offered to return 10 per cent of this, as well as 10 per cent of the mansion upkeep. Mr. Winebrenner's salary is also fixed, but his contribution will begin on the date set for the reduction to become effective.

New Antiseptic by Vicks Saves Half Usual Costs

Born in a Depression Year—and Priced Accordingly —It Brings Tremendous Savings to Every User of a Daily Mouthwash and Gargle.

NEW BAN ON HALITOSIS

Local Druggists Now Offering a Special Trial Size—A 25c Value for Only 10c, While Supply Lasts.

The makers of Vicks VapoRub have now produced an antiseptic. It is called Vicks Voratone Antiseptic. No extravagant claims are made for it. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce. And they were aided by the chemists, bacteriologists and pharmacologists of their 16 allied organizations in America, England and Germany.

In most American families, such an antiseptic is now considered a daily necessity—for halitosis (bad breath), oral hygiene and other antiseptic uses. That a gargle and mouth-wash—guaranteed by the Vicks name and reputation—can be had now, at actually less than half the usual cost, is welcome news to millions of people.

Vicks Antiseptic has this unique advantage. Born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly. Aided by record low prices on raw materials—and Vicks facilities for mass production—Vicks Chemists were able to produce a large 10-ounce bottle—a usual 75c value—that is priced regularly at only 35c.

Vicks Voratone is a balanced antiseptic. Mild enough to be used daily without risk to delicate membranes. Strong enough to do everything an oral antiseptic can and should do. It is designed for all the customary uses of an antiseptic mouth-wash and gargle—to be used in the customary way.

Unusual Trial Offer

Of course, the only real proof of its quality—and its economy—is actual use. To furnish such proof, the makers have supplied druggists with five million bottles of a special trial size at less than cost of manufacture. Each bottle contains 2½ ounces—a 25c value. The price to you—while the supply lasts—is only 10c.—Adv.

Sewing a LIVING BODY

ILLUSION:
In this startling trick, the magician seemingly pushes a huge threaded needle through the body of an assistant, pulling the needle out the other side, followed by the thread.

EXPLANATION:
Under the clothes of the victim is a pipe, extending around one side of his body from front to back. The needle, which is flexible, is inserted in the front end of the pipe, is carried around the body and emerges from the pipe in back. This operation is performed so quickly that the audience does not notice that the needle and thread are momentarily shortened during the act.

CAMELS

It's fun to be fooled— ...it's more fun to KNOW

We like tricks...but we prefer to keep them out of business.

Here's one that's interesting...The illusion that by some obscure magic certain cigarettes are "COOLER" than others.

THE EXPLANATION: Coolness is determined by the speed of burning. Fresh cigarettes burn slowly. They're cool. Parched, dry cigarettes burn fast. They're hot.

Camels are carefully wrapped in moisture-proof cellophane...in the famous air-tight Humidor Pack. Camels are cool because they're fresh and full of natural moisture.

A cigarette blended from choice non-irritating tobaccos also gives a cooler effect than one that is harsh and acrid. The finer the tobacco the less irritating it is, and therefore the "cooler."

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

This is why Camels are cool and mild, non-irritating—full of flavor. This is why Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made. It's the tobacco that counts.

Keep the famous welded Humidor Pack on your Camels. It assures you a fresh, cool smoke.

DEBT DISCUSSIONS.

The British government is happy to accept the invitation to send representatives to Washington to discuss the debt question, and seems to see no obstacle to an early agreement; but in the matter of reaching any accords on questions to come before the world economic conference, or questions affecting other nations, it appears that no decisions can be arrived at.

Since tariffs, currencies, trade concessions, stabilization of exchange, and other international economic problems are to come before the world economic conference, and since reciprocal tariff arrangements between the United States and the British commonwealth would affect other nations than the United Kingdom, it seems that the British government hopes to obtain an agreement on debt reduction while leaving all other questions undecided.

If the British delegation is coming for the purpose of carrying away a debt reduction agreement without committing Great Britain or the British commonwealth to any agreement which might benefit the United States, it would be better for the delegation to remain at home.

President-elect Roosevelt deserves to be understood when he makes the fact clear that he expects foreign debtors to reciprocate for debt concessions. He voices American opinion when he demands concessions in return for concessions. No proposal for outright reduction of the British debt which failed to embody a guarantee of some benefit to the United States could obtain the approval of Congress, and the President-elect has made it very plain that he will not submit any such proposal to Congress.

In essence the British proposition contemplates outright reduction of the British debt and the denial of any corresponding benefits to the United States until and unless all nations agree to grant them. The note attempts to present the "united front" of Europe against the United States in the matter of economic adjustments, while presenting separately Britain's demand for debt reduction.

The United States will not deal with a united front of debtors. It has stipulated that the debts shall not be discussed at the world economic conference. If the British government is unable to concede any economic benefits to the United States in exchange for debt readjustment, on the ground that all nations must agree to economic readjustments, then the proper method for it to pursue is to postpone its plea for debt reduction until after the economic conference has been held. If the conference should evolve the "ways and means for improving the world situation," to which the Hoover-Roosevelt statement refers, then the debtors would be in a better position to ask for debt relief.

Debt reduction strikes directly at American taxpayers. Unless they are given some compensating relief or benefit they will veto debt reduction. They have already done so, and Congress has unanimously taken notice of the popular decision. Diplomatic conversations can only result in mischief if they go contrary to the fixed will of the United States on the matter of war debts.

Without waiting for the advice or consent of any other nation, Great Britain can cooperate powerfully with the United States in an effort to prevent a gigantic war in the Far East. No permission of other nations is necessary to enable the United States and Great Britain to agree upon a disarmament policy which might eventually throw off a burden that is ten times as heavy as the war debts. These matters are "political," of course, but they are also at the bottom of world economic welfare and relief. The two leading nations will make the situation worse instead of better if the conversations beginning in March are intended to bring about immediate reduction of the British debt while postponing all relief to American taxpayers.

TRIAL BALLOONS ON TAXES.

Taxation continues to be one of the hardest nuts for Democratic leaders to crack, in spite of the decision to enact no revenue legislation at the present session of Congress. The problem has been postponed rather than solved. Leaders in both the House and the Senate are actively trying to work out some "painless" method of raising governmental funds that can be approved in the extra session.

Trial balloons to test public sentiment on new tax levies have become so common that there is no longer much interest in seeing them explode. Furthermore, the supply of balloons on which members of the Senate finance committee and the House ways and means committee may draw has been virtually exhausted. Congressmen have difficulty in devising any scheme that can command support. President-elect Roosevelt set the pace when he ruthlessly pricked the sales tax bubble. Since that time the pricking of tax balloons has become a popular sport on Capitol Hill, especially among Democrats who occupy responsible positions.

The latest trial balloon to be sent aloft is called the "luxury sales tax." No one is willing to sponsor this idea personally until the reaction of President-elect Roosevelt and the public has become known. But it is suggested as a substitute for the proposed higher tax on moderate incomes, which was killed by opposition in the House.

This modified sales tax would be imposed upon all luxuries. Some of its sponsors would apply it to all articles not of common usage. At present such articles as automobiles, radios, electric refrigerators, etc., are taxed at varying rates. It is argued that the rate should be made uniform and applied to all luxuries. But these special excise taxes have been extremely disappointing in their yield. During a period of hard times people buy few luxuries. If they are heavily taxed, sales are further reduced. The most serious objection to the proposed levy is that it would constitute another empty pretense of balancing the budget without actually doing so.

If the proposed tax should be made sufficiently inclusive to raise the needed revenue, it would be an outright sales tax. Most of the plans to impose a general manufacturers' sales tax have exempted food, essential clothing, etc. In principle they are not different from the tax that is now proposed. Perhaps the sponsors of the luxury excise tax are really trying to revive the sales tax under camouflage. At any rate, the anonymous scheme has nothing to commend it. When developed in detail it would be either a deceptive sales tax or another futile gesture of taking money from empty purses.

STATUARY HALL.

At last an effort is being made to relieve Statuary Hall of its clutter of bronze and marble. Artistic judgment failed to move Congress, but the physical danger of assembling too much weight in one portion of the Capitol is now receiving attention. The joint committee on the library has decided to advise both houses that the statues should be rearranged and some of them removed.

Statuary Hall contains some excellent sculpture, along with statues that have no merit. But no statue in the hall is impressive when it is hedged in by 64 other effigies. In its present condition Statuary Hall is an artistic atrocity. While relieving the strain on the floor, Congress ought also to relieve the mental agony of every artist who visits the place.

The solution for the problem is not clear. Some other location must be arranged for a considerable number of the statues now in the hall and for others that are being sent to Washington by the States. Under no conditions, says the Architect of the Capitol, should additional statues be added to the collection.

It has been suggested that a national hall of fame be erected for this aggregation of illustrious sons. But if only two men from each State could be represented in the hall of fame, it would not become national in the true sense of the word. Some States have produced many national heroes. Others have none that merit a place in a national hall of fame.

One strong objection to erection of a hall of fame containing statues is the artistic diversity among them. Some of them would be out of place in a national gallery of sculpture.

The whole problem needs careful attention by artistic experts as well as engineers. For the present Representative Pratt's suggestion that one statue from each State be allowed to remain in the hall seems to be a practical approach.

BACK TO GOLD.

Prospects for the return of the world to the gold standard have substantially improved in the last week. The report of the commission which is preparing the way for the forthcoming world economic conference emphasizes restoration of the gold standard as the first objective to be sought. The agreement between President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt to hasten consideration of Great Britain's war debt and other current economic problems also suggests action to stabilize the British pound.

A number of conditions essential for a restoration of the gold standard throughout the world are outlined by the preparatory economic commission. Nations on the gold standard must maintain a policy of easy money and allow capital to flow freely across international boundaries. Such a policy is already in operation in the United States. Countries that are off the gold standard must not seek trade advantages through further depreciation of their currencies, and must prevent speculation in foreign exchange. Exchange restrictions must be abolished.

Better distribution of gold would also be essential. At present 80 per cent of the world's supply of the yellow metal is held in five countries. Redistribution would involve, of course, exodus of gold from countries now holding it. In spite of the fact that the United States now has more gold than any other country, this requirement would not seriously affect American gold stocks. In comparison to total wealth and the volume of business done, the gold supply of this country is about normal. The United States has not hoarded gold in this crisis. It flows freely to and from American ports. Indeed, the heavy draft upon American gold last July brought this country close to the verge of suspending the gold standard.

France would be chiefly affected by the relinquishment of gold accumulating policies. That country holds nearly as much gold as does the United States. On the basis of her population or national wealth, she has several times as much gold. It would be impossible to restore the gold standard in Great Britain, Japan and other leading countries without the cooperation of France.

The world has a much larger supply of gold on hand than it had at the beginning of the depression. Production has increased. Less gold has been used in commercial pursuits. India has yielded up vast quantities of gold, because it commands a premium, and a number of countries have reduced the legal gold reserve percentages required of banks. All of these developments tend to increase the amount of gold that is supporting the price structure, and to make it easier for nations using depreciated currency to work toward restoration of the gold standard.

One other factor will add pressure to the movement for restoration of the gold standard. Congress is studying plans of making tariff rates more effective against goods from countries using depreciated currency. No action has been taken on these measures thus far because of hope that depreciated currency would soon be restored to its normal value. Unless countries off the gold standard take effective steps to bring about stability in their money, they may expect additional handicaps to their trade with the United States and other gold standard countries.

WHO WOULD BE PRESIDENT?

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A section of the new "lame duck" amendment to the Federal Constitution which has attracted little attention provides for filling the vacancy in case of the death of a President-elect. While it had been assumed that the Vice President-elect would succeed to the office, until now the Constitution has contained no direction on the subject. Unlike the other sections of the amendment, fixing the dates for beginning the terms of the President and members of Congress, which do not become effective until October 15, this provision for the succession of the Vice President-elect becomes immediately operative.

It is also provided that if a President shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term, or if the President-elect shall have failed to qualify, the Vice President-elect shall "act as President until a President shall have qualified." If there is neither a qualified President-elect nor a qualified Vice President-elect, Congress is empowered to designate a temporary President.

These provisions are made to fit a remote contingency. The Constitution prescribes that in case no presidential candidate receives a majority of the electoral votes the House shall choose a President from among the three candidates who received the largest number of electoral votes. The non-election of a Vice President by the electoral college would place the responsibility for his selection on the Senate. This amendment is designed to cover the situation should the House fail to elect a President and the Senate to elect a Vice President. It is one that could hardly occur. But it is well to have the procedure thus definitely prescribed.

However, there is still another related contingency for which no provision has been made. The Constitution prescribes that in case of the inability of the President to discharge his duties they shall devolve on the Vice President. But there is no provision for determining when inability to such a degree exists. It has been suggested that the decision should be left to the Supreme Court. But a constitutional warrant might be required for such action.

Some spill! The silver riders who thought the bank bill would carry double weren't good for two bucks.

Sooner or later it will have to be diagrammed for Peru that the way to initiate treaty revision in this day and age is not by seizure of somebody else's territory.

Senator McKellar proposes so many, well, let's say, extreme things, that it is not surprising he can't keep them all within constitutional bounds.

Silver's real ratio to gold is more than 80 to 1. The Senate refused to bring it down to 16 to 1 by its own fiat, but that's no sign it won't try to outwit old supply and demand and double the price of wheat.

It would really be something of a relief if some of the belligerent nations that are engaged in battles acknowledged they were at war.

As it appears now, the international debt conferences will be expected by our visitors to function the same as the prospective bankruptcy legislation will operate in the domestic field.

At least it must be considered a sporting gesture for the lame ducks of the House to applaud the signing of their own death warrant.

The railroads are rubbing their eyes and wondering how it is that they can have a look-in under the bankruptcy reforms that somehow are not limited to farm mortgages.

What penalty will fit the crime of the alarmists who talk revolution in this country unless their pet schemes are adopted?

OLD AND YOUNG AT PLAY.

Sometimes upon a sunny day
Outside I watch the children play
As up and down the path they race
And strew their toys about the place;
No thought have they of pain or care
Or old men dying anywhere.

To happy little girls and boys
There's something soothing in a noise,
And shrieks, the source of adult fears,
Are music to a youngster's ears.
How different from us are they
Who now but very seldom play.

But sometimes when the oldsters play
And folly turns the heads of gray,
I wonder, if old sorrow's touch
And pain and doubt have taught us much;
Grown old are we; far down life's hill,
Yet very weak and foolish still;

Wise at our puny trades, and yet
So apt all wisdom to forget;
Tall, self-important, vain, severe,
Yet very much like children here
And just as heedless as are they
When we step off our thrones to play.

The Man Who Hates You Without Reason Maybe Stole Your Sheep

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE first law of nature, as you learned in the fifth grade, is self-preservation. We do what is necessary to save our skins.

Since our happiness depends in large measure on self-respect, we do what is necessary to preserve a good opinion of ourselves.

Inspired by malice, anger or envy, we wrong a neighbor. At once we begin to feel ashamed of what we have done. Shame robs us of happiness, and we set about finding a way to justify ourselves—to convince ourselves that what we did was right.

If we had not wronged the man, our malice, anger or envy might have worn away in time. A change of fortunes might have enabled us to forgive or even to love him. But having wronged him, and being faced by the necessity of proving to ourselves that our act was justified and commendable, we say to ourselves: "He is a knave and a scoundrel. There is no good in him. He deserves ill treatment and the hatred of all proper men."

Thereafter, until the day of our death, we nurse our grudge and keep our malice green. We must hate him, for the moment we forgive him and confess that he is a decent fellow we also confess that we wronged him without justification and thereafter we live in shame.

This explains our attitude toward the world's unfortunates. The man who is out of a job and in need irritates us; we frown as we turn away from the begging cripple; we wish to say to the seller of pencils: "Why don't you contrive some way to get money and buy good clothes and look prosperous? You spoil our day. The sight of you makes us feel uncomfortable. Be gone, and hide."

We dislike him because he hurts our consciences. We feel in some way responsible for him. His plight shames us. The truth is, we feel a duty to help him; and because we are too selfish and stingy to do it, we feel ashamed. We dislike him because he makes us feel ashamed. "Get out of here, you shiftless loafer," we say. But what we really mean is: "Get out of my sight, you unfortunate. How dare you make me ashamed of my hard heart?"

In time of war, the first business of statesmen is to develop in us an artificial hatred and thus enable us to wrong the enemy with a clear conscience. We must learn to think him a brute, else conscience won't let us murder him.

The causes of hate are few, and if you neither envy nor fear your neighbor, and yet hate him, you have in some manner wronged him and your hate is an effort to quiet your conscience.

POLITICAL COMMENT

War Debt Opinions.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The present Congress is on record as opposing any revision of the war debts. There is no assurance that the incoming Congress will entertain a different opinion. And it is apparent that American public opinion is not prepared for cancellation, and will view with resentment any attempt at material reduction which would have the effect of putting the war-debt burden squarely upon the shoulders of the taxpayers in this country.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement that he will assume personal responsibility for this problem as soon as he enters office is an important move. It indicates that the matter will be a first charge on the new Administration and that it will be dealt with by the highest possible authority.

The President-elect has let it be known that he expects other economic issues to be discussed along with the war-debt question. He evidently hopes that commercial and financial understandings which he has in mind will offset the opposition of Congress to war-debt revision.

For Tariff Tinkers.

Los Angeles Times.

In 1922, under low tariffs, we imported 308,000 head of cattle, 24,897,000 pounds of fresh beef, 4,897,000 pounds of veal, 6,730,000 pounds of fresh pork and 2,382,000 pounds of fresh lamb. Then came the Smoot-Hawley tariff act. The next year we imported but 86,000 head of cattle, 1,784,000 pounds of fresh beef, 441,000 pounds of veal, 865,000 pounds of pork and 86,000 pounds of lamb.

China Surprises 'Em.

Butte (Mont.) Standard.

Just when all the other nations were wondering if they would have to chip in for a funeral wreath for her, China announces that she has, of all things—balanced her budget!

Banks and Inflation.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Members of Congress have lately engaged in piling up inflation bills. The mass of such bills, already impressive, swells rapidly. The number of the sponsors and, in some cases, their repute for a share of practical sense, counts for more than the accumulation of bills.

Banks have a particular reason to object to inflation. Apart from the convulsions to credit that the process might cause, a chartered commercial bank has a dollar in cash or placed in loans or bonds for almost every dollar it owes to depositors, to other banks or to stockholders. If its finances are sound today and should continue so after inflation, it could not gain much by the change, unless in the way of increased business; and its owners could lose by the conversion of the present dollars into an equal number of dollars less valuable.

Branch Banking.

Brooklyn Eagle.

The Senate voted on Saturday an amendment limiting the provisions of the Glass bill, for branch banking, to States that themselves allowed State-wide branches for banks under their charters. Only eight States do so, among them being no others of great financial importance but California, North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland.

Evidently the amendment does away with most of the value that the provision of branches for national banks might have had as the means for strengthening the banking situation in small localities. It does remain possible, however, for a State finding it necessary to restore its banking situation to render branch banking lawful for the institutions in its own system and thus automatically to open the way for its national banks to acquire weak local banks and turn them into branches.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Minister of Uruguay Good Naturedly Corrects Certain Errors Concerning Montevideo.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Last Sunday I glanced at the article in your "Diplomatic Pouch," and would like to comment on it in the same spirit of jest in which it was written. When my colleagues consult me, I often recommend as inadvisable any answer to the press, but naturally I do the opposite, as the good doctors permit themselves the things they deny to others.

I notice that the writer includes in the same paragraph Trotzky, communism, the flies of Montevideo, the Government, a Canadian, whose name I do not recall; a brilliant diplomat, omitting inexcusably his beautiful wife; the Seventh Pan-American Conference in Uruguay—mixing praise and castigation.

It is comforting to know, by his information, that the ancient ideals of having somewhere a harbor for the persecuted has found a refuge at Montevideo, although with limitations, no immigrants being admitted this year. In the circumstances, I observe imperturbed, too, the branding of my home town as communistic (less than 2 per cent of the voters in the election of November, 1932, were Communists), a subtle compliment, implying that at least at Montevideo something has been left worth distributing. A popular diplomat who was stationed for 30 years at Stockholm left as a token of gratitude all his possessions to the poor of the city, but when the will was opened, only debts were found. Debts will be the things that Communists could distribute everywhere if the storm lasts much longer, if then some of them remain, which is doubtful.

If Mr. Horan, as many Americans have planned, goes to Montevideo for the seventh Pan-American Conference next December, he will find a hospitable town, not tropical, because it is too far south of the equator, but typical; a place where a European would like to settle, as Lord Bryce said in his book on South America; a harbor for tourists, not for Communists—and whose air, mortal for flies and congeners, seems to be respirable and agreeable to persons of intellectual tastes. J. VARELA.

Mr. Cruise Goes on a Poetical Cruise, Singing of the Farmer's Joys.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Before the big red sun comes peeping I'm up and doing, never sleeping. I slop ten hungry grunting sows and milk twelve bawling, crazy cows. Then every mule and horse is fed before the wife gets out of bed. I job around with many things before the bell for breakfast rings. I fill the wood-box by the stove before the filly's hitched and drove. I sweat and cuss and fuss and sow and scratch and dig and pound and hoe. Ten thousand clods around me lay. I almost wish to run away. Sometimes I think I hear a sound—a bell a ringin' close around. I get home to hear her scold: "Now see the vittles all are cold." All afternoon I work and sweat, and fan and think I'm overhet. Before the evenin' sun gets low, my feet get draggy—goin' slow. My aching limbs grow tired and then I back track to the house again. I give the horses plenty water, and oats, and corn and lots o' fodder. Ere the milkin's ever done there's sheep to feed and calves to run. I ring the roughish rooting hogs and feed a pair of hungry dogs. The cow will switch her ugly tail right in my only milkin' pail, a switchin' flies and kickin', too she never tires, she just tires you. When at last I go to bed and try to rest my weary head and everything seems quite at ease, there crawls them pesty doggone fleas. Ho, hum, no rest I'll ever find, for rest ain't in a farmer's line. JOHN B. CRUISE.

Boxing in Public School Gyms Rather Strong Medicine, Says Mr. Jarvis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the risk of being written down a mollycoddle, I wish to say that I think the School Board was right in banning the boxing exhibitions of outsiders in public school gyms. The fact that President Theodore Roosevelt enjoyed boxing has nothing to do with the case. I have no objection to teaching public school striplings the manly art insofar as it does not interfere with more important branches of learning. Sparring matches under proper conditions by the boys among themselves are not objectionable. But I question the advisability of advertised settos in school buildings for the benefit of the prize-ring public, since it might cause school children to attach undue importance to the sport. It is strong medicine, this man-to-man mauling, and only too readily goes to the head of youngsters.

F. M. JARVIS.

Lawyers Could Speed Up Justice if They Would Get Busy in Earnest.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to indorse Judge Robert E. Mattingly's remarks about speedy trials for criminals at last Monday's meeting of the Mid-City Citizens Association. When he said, "The courts delay too long in trying murderers and we hang and electrocute too few," it put what we plain citizens think in a nutshell. People talk about the laws being to blame for the way in which lawbreakers are coddled, but in my opinion its the lawyers. Notice the bar association has a good deal to say now and then about stiffening up court procedure, but, to judge from results, it seems to be nothing but hot air and a gesture. If my opinion is worth anything, they could improve conditions a whole lot by getting busy in dead earnest.

Stocks Close With Rally In Spite of Dull Trading

Nine-Tenths Gain Recorded in Sales Volume of 750,843 Shares.

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Stocks braced themselves against the rail shares today and closed atop a mild rally.

News centered largely around happenings in the carrier field—Pennsylvania's 50-cent dividend and confirmation of long-current rumors that Delaware & Hudson had acquired a stock interest in New York Central. Also, freight loadings for last week seemed to have about held their own. Less favorable was Delaware & Hudson's omission of its own dividend, but the market effect of that action was localized in D. & H. shares, which had an extreme loss of half a dozen points.

Foreign exchanges were calm after yesterday's gyrations. Silver, with the "16-to-1" issue squelched by senatorial vote, had less cause for excitement and interest in that metal subsided as quickly as it flared on Tuesday. Bonds were irregular and quiet. In short, it appeared that speculation based on inflationary rumors had sobered considerably.

Stocks still had a dull market, though turnover of 750,843 shares was larger than of late. Amusement issues, confronted with the Radio-Keith-Orpheum temporary receivership and rumors of impending financial changes elsewhere in the industry, bogged down a bit, but generally speaking they were exceptions. Wall street obviously placed more stress on the Pennsylvania than the Delaware & Hudson dividend decisions, even though the former road made clear that another payment this year could not be expected unless income improved. The disbursement is being made out of earnings, for Pennsylvania earned a dollar a share last year.

Pennsy shares ran up a point and a half, closely tagged by New York Central, Union Pacific and Santa Fe. The stock of Mr. Loree's road rallied from the low, closing off 4⅞. With rails looking up, the general list shook off the mild irregularity that characterized early dealings and improved quietly through the afternoon. U. S. Steel preferred gained more than 2 points, but most of the other activities were less prosperous. American Can, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Case, Woolworth, American Telephone and Consolidated Gas firmed 1 to 1½, while Bethlehem, U. S. Steel common, Union Carbide, General Electric, U. S. Smelting and North American were fractionally higher. Coppers got some comfort out of firmer foreign metal. National Biscuit benefited by short covering; its 1932 earnings were at the rate of $2.44 a common share against $2.86 in 1931.

CURB RECORDS GAINS IN CONFUSED TRENDS

Speculative Issues Close Higher in Sales of 90,000 Shares.

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—In another dull session curb stocks showed divergent price trends today. Dealings which appeared largely of professional origin totaled about 90,000 shares, compared with 100,000 on Tuesday.

A considerable number of the speculative favorites closed a shade higher after ranging within exceedingly narrow price limits. Utilities contributed a sizeable share of the small turnover and some of the preferred issues scored good gains.

Commonwealth Edison, Georgia Power preferred, and Rochester Gas preferred each climbed more than 2 points. Electric Bond & Share improved a modest fraction and American Gas & Electric receded from above 31 to close at small net decline.

Some interest was aroused by the sale of a few small lots of Jones & Laughlin Steel at 20, a decline of 65 points from the previous sale. More closely held than some of the other steel company shares, it suffers naturally from an extremely thin market. The company reported a considerable deficit for 1932 and recently reduced the dividend payment on the preferred stock to 25 cents from 50 cents in the previous quarter.

Prices shifted irregularly in industrial and specialty groups. National Dairy preferred A dropped more than 6 points and Northwest Yeast jumped 8.

The mining division showed periodic signs of trading interest, mainly in the gold and silver issues. Lake Shore Mines, Ltd., was bid up fractionally.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

Paris Bourse Strike Adds To Finance Debate Drama

Paris, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A strike on the bourse and manifestations in the streets today marked the eve of the vital financial debate opening in the Chamber of Deputies tomorrow with the fate of the government of Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour extremely doubtful.

The debate centers on provisional credits for February and on Finance Minister Henri Cheron's program to balance the budget for 1933. This program was much mutilated by the chamber's finance committee, which refused to authorize 10,000,000,000 francs ($400,000,000) in new taxes and economies, approving instead 2,530,000,000 ($101,200,000) in new taxes and only 915,000,000 francs ($36,600,000) in economies.

At least 1,000 police guarded the neighborhood of the Chamber of Deputies today and dispersed farmer manifestants, while bourse strikers prevented quotations, cutting wires and electrical equipment.

There was no trading on the bourse. No quotations were posted except on rentes (government loans). Brokers quietly stood about the boards, which were blank except for yesterday's figures. Soldiers with fixed bayonets stood guard at the entrances to the Bank of France.

A statement by the brokers' unions advised that an orderly demonstration be held against "the mortal peril to our business." The notice expressed fears that savings would be despoiled, shareholders ruined and a flight of capital started.

Foreign exchange trading outside the bourse was not affected and the market was quiet.

Loading of Freight Shows Slight Gain

Western Railroads Make Better Records; Loss on Pennsylvania.

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A number of railroads today issued carloading figures for the week ended January 21, showing in many cases a slight gain over the previous week, particularly by the Western roads.

Pennsylvania registered a slight decline, 74,981 cars in the January 21 week against 75,891 the previous week. Last week's volume of traffic was 16.8 per cent below a year ago. The week before, the decline was 15.8 per cent.

St. Louis Terminal, showing traffic interchanges of 28 roads, reported 27,160 loadings against 25,239 the week before, and 31,301 in the corresponding 1932 week. Other reports, with their comparisons for the previous week, were: Missouri Pacific, 18,990 and 18,399; M-K-T lines, 6,384 and 6,352; St. Louis-San Francisco, 11,235 and 11,260; International Great Northern, 3,832 and 3,770, and Gulf Coast lines, 2,418 and 2,651.

Raw Cotton Export Gains During 1932

Government Reports Rise Is Largest in Past Five Years.

(Associated Press.)

Exports of raw cotton from the United States in 1932 were 8,916,000 bales, compared with 6,851,000 bales for 1931, a gain of 2,065,000 bales, or 30 per cent.

The Commerce Department, announcing the figures yesterday, said the gain was largest during the past five years. It said statistics show more than half of the United States cotton crop goes to foreign countries. During the past two years Japan has been the leading foreign customer for American cotton, this place having been held previously by Germany and the United Kingdom. In 1932 Japan took 2,240,000 bales, as compared with 1,744,000 in 1931.

The department was advised yesterday by its commercial attache at Tokyo that the Japanese tariff commission has recommended removal of the 35 per cent customs surtax from cotton yarns, rayon textiles, sugar, wood pulp and certain dye stuffs. The surtax, approximately equal to the depreciation of the yen, was imposed on dutiable imports last June 15.

BONDS RENEW RISE IN IRREGULAR SALES

U. S. Government Issues in Lead as Sales Drop to $9,422,000.

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The bond market was moderately irregular today, with caution the watchword of most traders and investors.

While United States Government issues continued to edge forward in somewhat lighter volume than usual, and a number of rail liens rallied mildly, there were some weak spots in the industrial section and foreign obligations milled about indecisively.

Sales totaled $9,422,000, par value, a little under yesterday's aggregate, and the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 corporate bonds advanced one-tenth of a point.

Listed Liberty and Treasury loans reflected the recent cut in bank deposit interest rates as indicating the maintenance of easy money conditions. Liberty 3½s and first 4¼s advanced to new 1932-33 highs, as did four of the Treasury maturities. The Government's new 5-year 2½ per cent notes, dated February 1 next, were in demand at a premium of about a point.

Various carrier liens took heart following the somewhat unexpected declaration of a dividend by the Pennsylvania and the announcement that the Delaware & Hudson had quietly bought a substantial interest in the New York Central. Undue exuberance was somewhat restrained, however, by the Delaware & Hudson's failure to act on the regular quarterly dividend today.

While the utilities were fairly steady, some of the moving picture company bonds were under pressure. Pathe Exchange 7s were off 7⅛ points; Loew's debenture 6s lost 2, and liens of Paramount and Warner Bros. sagged a point. R-K-O 6s managed to regain a loss of a point to close unchanged. Weakness of the amusement group was attributed to theater leasing troubles.

The foreign department was dull and mixed. German government 5½s and 7s were fractionally higher and gains were held by bonds of Argentina, Brazil and Colombia. Some of the German State, municipal and corporate securities eased, as did French 7s and Japanese 6½s.

Turkey Votes to Relax Curb on U. S. Exports

Istanbul, Turkey, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Turkish custom houses began operation today under a new trade agreement voted by the Cabinet last night which provides that the United States may export to Turkey without quota system restrictions on certain goods. The quantities of the goods were set so the amount would be sufficient to offset the unfavorable American balance of trade.

The decree permits a trebling of last year's American sales to Turkey, amounting to nearly $4,000,000 additional.

Charles H. Sherrill, United States Ambassador, whose negotiations at Angora, the Turkish capital, resulted in the arrangement, said: "I welcome Turkey's fine gesture which is certain to increase cordial Turkish-American relations because a body's most important nerve runs from his heart to the pocketbook."

Imports consisted of $10,935,500 from England, $2,200,0000 from France, $1,002,500 from Canada, $54,300 from India and $162,500 additional received at San Francisco shipped via the Pacific from India.

There were no exports but there was a loss occasioned by a further increase in earmarking of gold for foreign account amounting to $3,742,000, presumably for England. In addition, there was a reduction of $7,494,300 in gold held abroad to the Reserve Bank's credit.

WHEAT VALUES RISE ON ITALY'S IMPORTS

Rome Seen as New World Buyer; Other Grains Join Advance.

Chicago, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Prospective broadening of Italian import requirements for wheat gave strength to grain values today, especially in the late dealings.

It was estimated Italy would need to purchase from other countries this season 30,000,000 bushels of wheat. Highly bullish domestic crop reports continued to pour in both from winter wheat territory Southwest and from the Pacific Northwest.

Wheat closed firm at the day's top, ¼ to ⅝ above yesterday's finish; corn, unchanged to a shade higher; oats, unchanged, and provisions, unchanged to 5 cents down.

Italy as Buyer.

Suggestions that Italy would soon reenter the world market as a wheat buyer on a big scale became the focus of interest shortly before trading was ended. Estimates after the close indicated North American wheat export business today was considerably larger than 500,000 bushels. Earlier the chief stimulus for wheat price upturns had its source in reports that drought conditions Southwest were worse and the time extremely late for any material relief.

Official advices said that in the west central great plains the present status of domestic winter wheat was very poor to only fair, with considerable damage by soil blowing. Emphasis was also put on reports of severe low temperatures in parts of continental Europe devoid of snow covering. Although at times the market dipped to under yesterday's finish, an intermittent influx of commission house purchase orders proved in each case more than sufficient to bring about rallies.

Povisions reflected downturns of hog values.

COTTON SALES QUIET WITH LIGHT LOSSES

March Closes at 6.15 as General Market Drops 1 to 4 Points.

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Trading in cotton continued quiet today, and prices fluctuated within a range of 7 or 8 points.

March contracts, after advancing from 6.14 to 6.21 on steadiness in the train and stock markets, closed at 6.15 under some realizing and Southern selling. The general market closed barely steady, 1 to 4 points lower.

The opening was unchanged to 4 points lower. Liverpool cables were rather disappointing, and there was some near-month liquidation on the issuance of January notices representing about 1,800 bales. Trading in that contract ended at midday.

Trade interests bought January and March, and the market turned steadier. Active months rose 4 to 5 points, but comparatively light demand was supplied on this rally, and closing quotations were 5 or 6 points off from the best.

The weekly report of the Weather Bureau indicated that conditions during the past week were mostly favorable for coming crop preparation in the Atlantic States and much of Texas, but rains over most of the central portions of the belt and eastern Oklahoma had made the soil too wet for such work.

Liverpool cables reported a quiet market, with some hedge selling absorbed by trade calling. Southern advices to spot interests reported a very quiet trade, but said the basis was firmly held. Exports today, 10,189, making 4,846,710 so far this season. Port receipts, 23,645. U. S. port stocks, 4,783,978.

DOLLAR HOLDS FIRM ON FOREIGN MARTS

Pounds React and Francs Decline After Rally; Marks Sag.

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The British pound sterling relaxed today, after its rather sharp spurt yesterday, and most other foreign exchanges failed to indicate any decisive position in their relation to the American dollar.

European traders, who had previously been heavy buyers of sterling on reports that currency inflation was being seriously considered in the United States, either hastily reconsidered and began covering their positions or halted their short selling operations. The result was that trading steadied noticeably and most net price changes were narrow.

Sterling eased 7-16 of a cent to $3.39 7-16 for cables and exchange dealers reported there were no indications that this reversal was due to interference by the Bank of England control. Some bankers were of the opinion that the British equalization board probably would permit the pound to seek its own level for the time being in order to discourage speculation. The theory is that, if speculative offerings dry up around the $3.40 rate, the control commission can then more easily adjust the currency to the desired level.

French francs showed some strength in early trading, but dropped back to close unchanged at 3.90¼, which is again around the gold import point. Belgian belgas and Dutch guilders were fractionally higher, as were Norwegian kroner. German marks, Canadian dollars, Danish kroner, Swiss francs, Shanghai taels and Mexican pesos sagged. Japanese yen were moderately higher.

LOREE'S ROAD BUYS N.Y. CENTRAL STOCK

D. & H. Becomes Factor in Central's Affairs; Acts Through Morgan.

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Leonor F. Loree, shaggy-bearded stalwart of an all but vanished generation in railroading, came forth today as a major, and perhaps dominant, factor in the New York Central Railroad, one of the most vital links in the Nation's transportation system.

Mr. Loree announced that his Delaware & Hudson Co. has acquired approximately 10 per cent of Central's common stock. This makes the D. & H. the largest individual stockholder, and usually well-informed quarters in Wall street expressed the opinion that Loree, through close associates, had lined up substantially more of the road's 4,992,597 shares.

Thus the veteran railroader, after being blocked at almost every turn in a series of consolidation efforts in the past five years, has brought himself again to the forefront of railroad finance in one of the most striking maneuvers since the days of such titans of railroading as Harriman and Hill.

Deal Confirms Rumors.

Mr. Loree's announcement was made after a meeting of the D. & H. board, and confirmed rumors which had been current in Wall street for months. It had been repeatedly reported that Loree was actively accumulating the shares of this famous property, so long associated with the fortunes of Vanderbilt, Morgan and Baker.

The entrance of this later-day stormy petrel of railroading into Central was evidently welcomed by its bankers, for Mr. Loree said the shares had been acquired in the open market through J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. Loree's comment was brief. "This purchase," he said, "was made (by D. & H.) out of surplus funds and as an investment, feeling confident that with revived prosperity New York Central will be one of the first railroads to show a return of earning power and sound intrinsic value. The acquisition of this substantial interest has been with the knowledge and approval of those already largely interested in ownership, and all parties contemplate board representation of the new interest as and when this detail can be submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission."

Mystery Still Persists.

Other than explaining that the Central stock was acquired "in the open market" the source of the shares purchased by D. & H. was left largely a mystery. It was reported in usually well-informed sources, and denied in others, that a substantial part of the Vanderbilt family interest had been acquired by Loree or close associates. It was learned authoritatively that the First National Bank-Baker interest in Central had been retained virtually intact.

Considerable interest was expressed in the fact that Mr. Loree acted through J. P. Morgan & Co., rather than Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who have long acted as bankers for D. & H. and Loree, and in prewar days were keen rivals of the Morgan firm in railway financing. Loree, in fact, in his younger days was an associate of Harriman, who was backed by Kuhn, Loeb against Hill and Morgan in the bitter struggle for Northern Pacific.

It was stated authoritatively, however, that no change in railroad banking affiliations would result from Loree's latest transaction; that Morgan and First National would continue to act for Central, and still held control, and Kuhn, Loeb for D. & H. It was recalled that First National had been associated with Kuhn, Loeb in D. & H. financing from time to time, and that the late George F. Baker had expressed admiration for Loree's financial acumen.

Merger Plan Clarified.

It was felt in Wall street that the Eastern railroad consolidation plan had been considerably clarified by Loree's affiliation with Central. In his efforts to establish a new trunk line system in competition with Central in 1927 and '928, Loree had been at loggerheads with Central's management.

Loree's efforts, also, to build a short cut across Pennsylvania from Pittsburgh to Easton, a project in which he was encouraged by Harriman before his death, had also brought him into conflict with Central and Pennsylvania.

It was in the blocking of Loree's effort to form a new trunkline system on the basis of the Wabash, Lehigh and D. & H. that the Central, Pennsylvania and other trunk lines provided him and the D. & H. with the funds which have now made him an important factor in Central. In 1928, he sold D. & H.'s interest in Lehigh and Wabash to Pennsylvania for $63,-000,000 in cash which represented a profit of $23,000,000.

KINDLER AND HESS GIVE JOINT RECITAL

Orchestra Conductor Wins Ovation at Mayflower Musical Morning.

Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, displayed his musical versatility yesterday when he appeared as cellist soloist at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's sixty-seventh Musical Morning at the Hotel Mayflower. Mr. Kindler was given an ovation when he appeared on the platform to open the program with a suite by de Caix d'Hervelois, which had all the atmosphere of the seventeenth century about it.

Mr. Kindler, who first won musical fame as a cello soloist, showed by his performance yesterday that his old ability in handling the cello has not forsaken him. The exquisitely delicate measures of the Prelude, the Gavotte Minuet, La Plainte and La Napolitaine of the suite brought out different facets of Mr. Kindler's genius.

The other soloist of the morning was Myra Hess, pianist. Her command of her instrument was apparent in her first number, "Five Bagatelles," by Beethoven and she maintained this leadership throughout her numbers.

In the "Sonata" by Cesar Franck, Mr. Kindler and Miss Hess were masters of their individual instruments, playing in harmonious accord the perfect music of this French composer. The lovely melodies of the "Sonata," the solo passages and the blending of the instrumental tones made this presentation one of true musical loveliness, and the audience showed its appreciation by prolonged applause.

A Washington composer, who has been most effective in arousing support for the National Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Mary Bruce Howe, wrote one of the best numbers, "Patria," played by Mr. Kindler. It was brilliant and colorful, as were "Murciana" and "Andalusia," by J. Nin, in which the manifold beauties of the cello were brought to the fore.

The audience also enjoyed, judging from the applause, the "Six Preludes," by Chopin, admirably played by Miss Hess.

The artists at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's sixty-eighth musical morning next Wednesday will be Mme. Lotte Lehman, soprano of the Vienna, Berlin, Paris, London and Chicago Opera Companies, in her Washington debut, and Paolo Marion, tenor, from Milan, Vienna and Chicago Opera Companies, also making his first Washington appearance.

Green Sounds New Warning of Force

Replies to Chamber Query With Article in Magazine.

(United Press.)

Labor will fight with every legitimate weapon at its command "to restore the kind of America in which a man can have a chance in his own right," President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, writes in the forthcoming issue of Nation's Business. The article is in reply to a request from the United States Chamber of Commerce for Green to elaborate on recent statements that labor was ready to employ "forceful means" to attain its objectives.

"There has been a fear that we are in earnest," Green writes. "Let me use this opportunity to double-rivet the assurance that we are in earnest. The measure of our earnestness is the measure of the hunger of those who work."

Mr. Green wrote that employers "who will not recede from the pinnacles of autocracy and domination" may "hug to themselves whatever fear they wish to picture."

Oyster Navy Goes After Pirate Ships

Maryland Sends Flagship to Cope With Potomac Depredations.

Leonardtown, Md., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The fresh appearance of oyster pirates in this section recently was answered today by the State. The flagship of Maryland's oyster navy, the Gen. Robert M. McLane, arrived in the waters of the lower Potomac under orders from Swepson Earle, State conservation commissioner, to arrest any dredgers discovered.

Earle said in Baltimore that any boats found with dredging equipment, whether or not they were being operated, would be seized. Dredging is forbidden in the Potomac.

Recently a fleet of seven vessels has been seen operating off Tall Timbers and Piney Point in lower St. Marys County. The bold action of these poachers has aroused oystermen in the vicinity, who, according to reports, have threatened to make an attempt to curb poaching.

She was found in her apartment yesterday and taken to the county hospital.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT is impossible not to be impressed by the closeup of modern warfare afforded by "The Big Drive," Albert L. Rule's imposing resurrection of many vital aspects of the fighting on virtually all the fronts during the titanic struggle that came to an end in 1918, but during the four preceding years had snuffed out 25,000,000 lives.

Albert L. Rule.

An invited audience of several hundred sat in awed silence while this vivid reminder of the hideousness of the Great War was unreeled for their especial benefit at a Tuesday midnight preview in the RKO-Keith Theater. A good deal of the time they shuddered, occasionally they wept, but very infrequently did they laugh.

"The Big Drive," which opens a week's engagement at RKO-Keith's tomorrow, will not be comprehensively reviewed at this time, although it will do no harm to say that it is composed of purportedly official films from the archives of eight nations that fought on both sides of the greatest conflict in the history of armed combat. This claim is apparently authenticated by the quality of photography that characterizes many of the individual scenes and occasionally full sequences. There is no evidence, even, of studio retouching of negatives that rather convincingly reveal the ravages of time.

There is one sequence, in closeup, out of the entire nine reels that leaves some question in my mind. That is a short interval devoted to hand-to-hand fighting between American doughboys and German infantrymen. If the motion picture cameraman stood complacently by and ground his little crank while this fighting was going on, he either was unarmed and a cripple or the war's most perfectly disciplined recruit.

I do not now remember which side was supposed to have taken these pictures. If it was a German cameraman, he would have shot the American in the final struggle; if an American, he would have shot the German. So it is all even in that regard. The point is that he ostensibly kept on taking his pictures while his pals were being slaughtered right under his very nose, no matter which side he was on.

This is the only bit in the picture that gives the impression that it might have been "staged" for the sake of the thrill of some murderous bayonetting.

In the large view, "The Big Drive" does for the Great War what the Brady Collection did for the Secession War Between the States, no less.

That ought to give you a rough idea.

For the refreshment of the memory of the older generation and the gratification of a younger generation's lust for facts worth knowing, it should be recorded in this compendium of priceless information that when the people of the City of Washington observe the "Evening With Sousa" Tuesday, February 14, in the Buchanan Auditorium, Thirteenth and D streets northeast, the United States Marine Band, of which Sousa long was leader, will play as the opening selection "The Washington Post March."

In his autobiography, the late John Philip Sousa, the march king, in commenting on this particular composition, one of his most popular, had this to say:

"When I made my first band tour of Europe, I had to explain the meaning of the title of that well-known march of mine, 'The Washington Post.' The impression was that it referred to a mail coach, and there were postal cards displayed depicting a coaching scene, and labeled 'The Washington Post.'

"The march is named after the newspaper of that name in the National Capital, and its origin was this: Frank Hatton and Beriah Wilkins, proprietors of the paper, got up a competition amongst the school children for the best essay, and the scheme 'caught on' to such an extent that a huge outdoor meeting was held at the National Museum Grounds for the distribution of the prizes.

"I was there with the Marine Band and played for the first time the march which I had promised my friends, the proprietors, to write."

Now you know the why and wherefore of the signature number of The Post's nightly "Postilion" hour on the 10 p. m. broadcast through Station WRC.

And, incidentally, don't forget the "Evening With Sousa," in commemoration of a figure of enduring greatness in the musical annals of the Capital of the Nation.

Of more immediate interest, however, will be the immediately impending attractions held out by a new amusement week. Of these, "Of Thee I Sing," the Pulitzer Prize musical satire aimed at the foibles of present-day political methods, opening at the National on Sunday night for an engagement of a single week, must be given first place.

By the nature of its satire, the keenness of its comedy, the tunefulness of its music and the excellence of its cast, this should prove precisely what the doctor ordered for that late winter ennui in the National Capital.

As is so rarely the case, even in dramatic works devised for strictly legitimate acting, the libretto of "Of Thee I Sing" reads as well as it acts. It is persistently and pungently funny. That is apt to be the way with any "book" written by George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind, although not all of them take Pulitzer Prizes.

The music by George Gershwin and the lyrics by Ira were omitted from the prize award, although they should not have been.

Since nothing but orchestra seats remain for this engagement—the balcony and second balcony having been completely sold out to mail orders—it may be said to exceedingly behoove any one wishing to sit in on this bumptious business to take advantage of the box-office seat sale, beginning this morning.

The remainder of the current week, of course, will be devoted to Mr. Walter Hampden's "Caponsacchi," at the evening performances, and "Hamlet" at the Saturday matinee, at the National.

On Sunday afternoon at 3:30, E. M. Newman will present the second installment of his "Around the World" series of Travel-talks at the National, when "India to Cambodia" will encompass his itinerary. The talks are illustrated by both colored slides and motion pictures and this one will deal with Bombay, Agra, Delhi, Calcutta, Ceylon, Siam, Burma and other far-away and fascinating places.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Serge Koussevitzky, will give its only local concert of the present season in Constitution Hall on Tuesday afternoon, January 31, at 4:30 o'clock. The program will open with Weber's overture to "Oberon" and will offer as its outstanding composition Beethoven's 7th Symphony in A minor, opus 92, in four movements.

The new week in the motion picture theaters will be principally notable for the inauguration tomorrow evening at 8:30 of the road show engagement of the Barrymores, Ethel, Lionel and John, in "Rasputin and the Empress," at Loew's Columbia. This spectacular drama of the Romanoffs is one of the most widely discussed films of the season and will be presented twice daily, following tomorrow night's premiere, at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m., with all seats reserved.

Other attractions in the downtown, first-run houses are: Earle, James Cagney and Mary Brian in "Hard to Handle," and Helen Kane headlining the vaudeville; Palace, Eddie Cantor in "The Kid From Spain;" RKO-Keith's, "The Big Drive;" Rialto, Tala Birell and Melvyn Douglas in "Nagana;" Loew's Fox, Helen Hayes and Ramon Novarro in "The Son-Daughter," and Anatole Friedland revue headlining the vaudeville; Metropolitan, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Bette Davis in "The Parachute Jumper."

Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson, of Washington, the former Miss Frances Starr, distinguished stage star under the banner of the late David Belasco, will be an interested spectator at tonight's presentation of the Molnar play, "Olympia," by the Drama Guild of Washington. Four of the cast of seven to be seen in the play are former professional players. Miss Starr is attending through her love of the drama and not as a guest of the local acting group.

There was a time when Ian Keith, importantly cast with Tallulah Bankhead in "Forsaking All Others," coming to the National the week of February 6, was thought to bear a striking profile resemblance to John Barrymore. The years are arranging it so that Mr. Keith looks less and less like John and more and more like Lionel—if "still" photography is to be relied upon, of course. Not that it matters.

And, as one simple agriculturist to another, with a robin hopping around the back yard yesterday afternoon and the plum tree about to burst into bloom, it's going to be just too bad if winter comes!

Mandamus Is Won By Ousted Student

Maryland U. Man Granted Right to Resume Studies; College to Appeal.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 25.—A mandamus writ restraining University of Maryland authorities from refusing permission to Ennis H. Coale, to pursue studies at the institution and ordering them to reinstate him as a student and to permit him to take other courses in lieu of military training, was signed today by Judge Joseph N. Ulman in the Superior Court.

Coale, who was suspended from the University last fall because he refused to take the military course on religious grounds, expects to reenter the College Park institution at the opening of its second term next month, it was said.

Although Judge Ulman's order takes effect from the date signed, it was pointed out that the college authorities have the right to ask the court to stay the operation of the order pending disposition of an appeal they have announced will be taken.

Beer Bill Hearing Will Start Monday

Smoot Says Finance Group Will Examine Policy and Revenue Phase.

(Associated Press.)

Public hearings on the Collier-Blaine 3.5 per cent beer and wine bill before the Senate Finance Committee were set by Chairman Smoot yesterday for Monday.

Smoot said the hearings would deal not only with the question of taxation, but with the policy of the bill and that both sides of the prohibition question would be heard.

His announcement foreshadowed further delay in consideration of the beer and wine bill. Democrats were expected to protest extending the hearings beyond consideration of the taxation question, in an effort to speed action.

President Provides Son Of Boyhood Tutor Job

(Associated Press.)

The future looked brighter yesterday for the woman who gave Herbert Hoover his early schooling in the little town of West Branch, Iowa.

The President, by executive order, has given a job to the son of Mrs. Molly Brown Carran, of that town. Beginning next week, Charles Carran will receive from the Government $2,070 a year for carrying the United States mail through the Iowa rural districts nearby. Mr. Hoover heard of this teacher's troubles from her own lips after he had helped her aboard the President special train at a railroad crossing some miles from Des Moines, while en route to deliver the first major address of his campaign.

MANY ASPIRANTS VIE FOR ROLE OF QUEEN

First Pictures to Appear in Post's Rotogravure Section Sunday.

With an enthusiasm seldom evidenced in any similar competition, loving mothers, relatives and admiring suitors are sending photographs of charming girls to The Washington Post in ever increasing numbers, and thus possibly paving the way to fame and fortune for the originals of the photographs.

Some of these pictures will be shown to readers of The Washington Post this Sunday, when ten will be reproduced upon the front page of The Sunday Post's Rotogravure Section as the first of a series to appear each week up to and including Sunday, April 2. The Washington Post will pay $5 to each of the 100 girls whose pictures are published in this series.

Photographs will be received by The Post every day until April 15, when the contest closes. All photographs will be reviewed by a committee of judges who will select from them the 51 girls who evidence outstanding femininity, charm and character.

These 51 girls will then become the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune during a two weeks' visit to the Century of Progress International Exposition in Chicago. From this group of girls three will be chosen as queen and first and second ladies in waiting. Five thousand dollars in cash will be presented to the queen and $3,000 to the first lady in waiting. The third girl will receive $2,000.

The purpose of this search, which is being conducted by The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune under official and exclusive authorization of World's Fair officials, is to provide a colorful and attractive background for the impressive ceremonies that will open the Century of Progress International Exposition on June 1.

Every unmarried girl who is not a professional stage girl or artists' model or an employe of The Washington Post is invited to submit her photograph in competition for these great awards. There is no expense or obligation of any kind involved and there is positively no commercial affiliation of any kind.

It is merely necessary to send a photograph which has been made within the last twelve months and which measures at least 6x8 inches in size to the "Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post." The transmittal coupon, which appears elsewhere in this paper, should be pasted upon the back of the photograph or the same information written upon a separate sheet of paper and similarly attached.

Following the suggestion made last Monday in the columns of The Washington Post, several offices of Government departments have nominated a favored candidate for the title of Queen, and other offices and store employes are doing likewise. The rules of the contest, which are published in full each Sunday in The Washington Post, are specifically designed to allow this method of entering a contestant in addition to her own personal privilege.

Woman Wins Case In Stock Purchase

$2,500 Verdict Is Directed Against Two Title Companies.

Following a three weeks' hearing in the Court of Justice Jennings Bailey, in the District Supreme Court, Grace L. Hutton was given a verdict for $2,500 against the New York Title & Mortgage Co., and the Capitol Title & Guarantee Co., which was formerly headed by John Paul Earnest.

Through Attorneys E. Hilton Jackson, Levi H. Davis, and Allan David, Mrs. Hutton said she had been persuaded to purchase stock in the Capitol company because of a letter written by George S. Parsons, solicitor of the New York company, representing that the local company had one of "the finest title plants in existance."

Mrs. Hutton's suit is the fore-runner of a number of suits that have been filed in the District Supreme Court against the New York company and Mr. Earnest's former company.

C. U. FIVE DEFEATS MARYLAND IN THRILLER, 29-27

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE 8-inch golf cup, if it had been suggested by anybody other than Gene Sarazen, would have been laughed off the sports pages by this time, but even though the idea is Sarazen's gift to the game, there is still the disposition in most quarters to laugh heartily and counter with the suggestion that Sarazen was talking through his bonnet.

As far as this department is concerned, the fascination that golf holds on the golfing public has been the inability of 98 per cent of the players to master the game. Sarazen's proposal which would enlarge the cup from 4¼ inches to 8 inches, would whittle down the game to the level of the average player without materially benefiting the pros.

Eight-inch cups would make a mockery out of par. Par figures on all courses are predicated on two putts, once the player is on the green, but with 8-inch cups to shoot at, one-putt greens for the better players would be the rule rather than the exception, knocking Old Man Par's figures into the proverbial cocked hat.

Vergez's Note Refreshes Magnates.

Big league baseball magnates now attempting to sell cut-price contracts to their talent and finding a bit of sales resistance on the part of the ball players, may take heart at the action of Johnny Vergez, the Giants' third baseman, who promptly accepted the club's terms for 1933.

"In view of the fact that I was not so hot last season," said a note which accompanied Vergez's signed contract, "I am more than satisfied with the fair way the club has treated me and will do everything I can to regain my form of 1931."

Vergez's statement comes as a refreshing respite to the magnates in their salary war. Despite the club owners' declaration that ball players have been the last to feel the depression, there has been no rush to accept the terms written into the 1933 contracts. And when a ball player admits that he was "not so hot" last season, the millenium must be here.

Red Sox to Look Over Nine New Pitchers.

Emblazoned with a fine specimen of the engravers' handiwork, a resplendent pair of red stockings in the center of a miniature diamond, the little leaflet containing the Boston Red Sox Team roster for 1933 comes to hand with full data on the squad.

Probably the outstanding item that the little leaflet contains is the line-up of 13 pitchers who will go to Sarasota on March 1. Ever since the Hot Stove League season was formally opened, there have been stories emanating from Boston which painted in bright colors the high hopes for superior pitching from the Red Sox staff, and there may be a reason.

A perusal of the pitching talent now with the Red Sox reveals that out of the pitching staff that pitched the Red Sox into eighth place last season, only four names identified with that staff are now with the club, which means that Boston has made a fine start in disposing of many of its liabilities.

Boy Painter May Have to Be Broken Again.

No prima donna of the stage ever demanded or received the attention that is being devoted to the training of the British horse, Boy Painter, now on the scene of the Agua Caliente Handicap in Lower California.

Complete training instructions were sent with the horse from England. His peculiarities were noted, his fancies listed and the method by which he was brought to dinning form last season set down at length.

In his early outings at Agua Caliente, the greatest problem presented the trainers by Boy Painter was keeping him straightened out on the track. He headed to the left and tried to run in the opposite direction against other oncoming horses that were working out. Boy Painter thus far shows little disposition to run counter clock-wise as is the style on American tracks. In England, the fields run from left to right and the upshot of the matter may be that Boy Painter may have to be broken again.

$25,000 Cut In Purse of Preakness

Feature at Pimlico to Net Half Usual Money Award.

Only 2 Other Stake Races Listed in Meet Budget.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 25.—The $50,000 Preakness Stakes has been cut to $25,000 by the Maryland Jockey Club, Matt L. Daiger, secretary and general manager of the club, announced tonight. The reduction has met with the approval of the Maryland Racing Commission, of which Jervis Spencer, jr., is chairman, he added.

Recently the Maryland Jockey Club submitted to the commission its budget for the spring season, along with a skeleton of its fall program, for consideration. Mr. Spencer, who returned today from a shooting trip in the South, and the other members of the commission — Edwin Warfield, jr., and John F. Mudd—studied the budget and notified the club that it met with their approval.

The $50,000 Kentucky Derby, it was announced recently, would remain at that figure. This stake is run at Churchill Downs and will be held May 6, a week before the Preakness is decided at Pimlico. Both races are for 3-year-olds, the Preakness—which bars geldings—at 1 3-16 miles, and the Derby at 1¼ miles.

Conditions Warrant Reduction.

"We would like to have kept the Preakness at $50,000," said Mr. Daiger, "but after a careful survey of all conditions we felt that the times did not warrant adding that amount to the historic feature this year. And we also did not desire to be placed in a position of being criticized for what might be termed extravagance when we lost money last year."

The Maryland Jockey Club cut all down the line for its spring budget. The $15,000 Dixie Handicap was sliced to $5,000. This is a race for 3-year-olds and up at 1 3-16 miles and will be run on the first Saturday of the meet, May 6. Only one other stake—the $2,500 Pimlico Nursery—will be held in the spring.

Such stakes as the $3,000 Lady Baltimore, which was for fillies; the Jennings Spring Handicap and Green Spring Valley Steeplechase, all $3,000 events, and the $2,500 Billy Barton Steeplechase, will become overnight races and each have $1,000 added instead. Mr. Daiger announced these stakes formerly carried $17,000 in added money, but in 1933 will be worth a total of $6,000, a saving of $11,000.

Ferrell, Indians' Ace, Joining Holdout Club

Greensboro, N. C., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Wesley Ferrell, of the Cleveland Indians' pitching staff, indicated today he had returned his proffered contract for the baseball season without his signature because of a "wide financial breach" between himself and the management.

Didrickson Has Fever And Is Ordered to Bed

Detroit, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Mildred (Babe) Didrickson, star girl athlete, was ordered to bed by her physician and all engagements for the day were canceled when she developed a slight temperature after a workout in a gymnasium here today.

George Emerson, manager for Miss Didrickson, who is making a seriees of appearances here and in other cities, said she "evidently is tired out from her heavy schedule the past few weeks."

Miss Didrickson is scheduled to begin a vaudeville tour Friday.

Vines, Two U. S. Mates In Anzac Semifinals

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Ellsworth Vines, jr., Keith Gledhill and Wilmer Allison, all of the United States, and Jack Crawford, defending champion of Australia, today won their way to the semifinals of the Australian lawn tennis championships.

Vines, United States and Wimbledon title holder, defeated A. H. Hassett, of Victoria, 4—6, 6—1, 6—4, 6—1; Gledhill won from H. O. Hopman, 3—6, 2—6, 8—6, 6—0, 6—3; Allison defeated A. Quist, 1—6, 3—6, 9—7, 6—0, 6—2, and Crawford defeated D. P. Turnbull, a fellow Australian, 6—4, 6—3, 6—2.

$150,000 Net Profit For Olympic Games

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The Olympic games here last summer returned a net profit of approximately $150,000.

While no financial statement of the international classic has been made, this figure was revealed in a statement from the Community Development Association that it "hoped to contribute to the city and county of Los Angeles the final surplus of the Olympic games in the neighborhood of $150,000."

The Los Angeles organizing committee has announced it would retire the bonds of $1,000,000, voted by the State Legislature for promotion of the games. The $55,000 premium on the bonds also will be paid.

It was unofficially said that the gross gate receipts for the games, which were the most successful financially of any ever staged, were slightly short of $2,000,000.

Carr Stops

Running After Competing Abroad This Summer; Created Records.

BILL CARR.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Down through the stretch bursts a black-headed vision of flying youth, arms driving rhythmically, slender legs eating up distance, spikes biting fast and clean into the track.

The bellow of 100,000 throats crashes down from the sloping tiers of the Olympic Stadium, engulfs the flying figure, hurls it on to the finish line.

The vision fades, and Bill Carr, fastest quarter-miler in history, shakes his head and tries to concentrate again on the book in his hand, the scholar deep in the problems of 1933.

Plans to Quit After Summer Tour.

For William Carr, of Pine Bluff, Ark., student in the Wharton Business School of the University of Pennsylvania, the new year marks the end of a glamorous racing trail. He will run out the string of college competition, and compete abroad this summer. Then the spiked shoes of the boy who sped through 400 meters of the Olympic final in 46.2 seconds will go up on the wall forever.

"I expect to be a member of the United States track and field team that will tour Europe next summer," he says. "When the team returns, my uniform and spiked shoes will be put away for good. I'm going to devote every minute of my time to business. I don't think a man can be both a good athlete and a good business man, so I plan to efface myself from track."

And so, in all probability, Bill Carr will step off a cinder track for the last time in 1933 with all the modesty, the shyness and lack of ostentation that marked his unheralded entry years ago at Mercersburg Academy.

A little fellow, it is difficult to picture in the neat, studious young man who goes about his business studies so seriously the Mercury-footed athlete who beat fleet Ben Eastman three times last summer and broke a world record each time he did so.

Has Won Three Varsity Club Scholarships.

The same earnestness that marks his track work carries him to exceptional marks in the Pennsylvania classrooms. Running has never been allowed to interfere with his books. For the past three years he has held the Varsity Club scholarship, awarded annually for scholastic excellence, character and athletic ability.

Once the Olympics ended for him with the anchor dash on the United States 1,600 meters relay team that set a new world record of 3 minutes 8.2 seconds, Bill Carr put his spiked shoes and shorts under lock and key. He left them there until he returned from Christmas vacation. A nominal amount of gymnasium work kept him in good physical condition.

Now he is training diligently for the last of his college competition. He expects to run his last intercollegiate quarter mile in the Penn relays. He will concentrate on the 100 and 220-yard sprints in dual meets and the outdoor intercollegiate championships. On the trip abroad he may compete as a quarter miler.

There was little indication in Carr's early career of the dazzling speed that blazed through the intercollegiate and Olympic fields last summer. He was a broad jumper, high jumper, and sprinter at Mercerburg Academy. For two years he ran on the Penn relay team. In one meet, he broad jumped 23 feet 3⅝ inches, high jumped 6 feet, and ran 100 yards in 10.1 seconds.

Raced His First Quarter In 48.4.

Last spring he raced his first quarter mile against Cornell in 48.4 seconds. He was conceded little chance against Blonde Ben Eastman in the intercollegiates. So he ran Big Ben into the ground in 47 seconds flat, did it again in 46.9 in the Olympic 400-meters tryout, and proved his supremacy beyond all question in the Olympic final.

Lawson Robertson, who coached him in his triumphs, considers him one of the greatest competitors in the history of track.

"He beat Eastman in the intercollegiates and it was looked upon as a fluke. Twice more, under terrific strain, he did it again. There could be no better testimonial to his iron heart and detemination."

School Heads May Reject Park Bid

Teams Must Use Own Stadiums, Say 2 Principals.

Praise Griffith Offer of Major Setting for Series.

THE unlooked-for possibility that the high school principals would not be receptive to Clark Griffith's gratis offer to provide Griffith Stadium for the high school series loomed yesterday when an informal canvass of two of the principals showed them to be against the notion, although united in their gratitude to Griffith for the offer.

The principals based their objection to accepting the vast big league ball park field on the grounds that the District Government had provided the five high schools with baseball fields and stadia running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars and that it would be something of a sorry commentary on the worth of these plants if the series were moved to a neutral point.

Griffith has made no formal offer to the principals of the park facilities, but it is not expected that the damper which the two principals cast on the situation yesterday will stop the veteran owner of the Washington Club in his pioneering efforts to refurbish the lagging interest in scholastic baseball. Griffith yesterday completed arrangements with George Moriarity, lecturing American League umpire, to come to Washington to address the high school assemblies.

Post Story Encouraged Players.

The exclusive Post story Tuesday that Griffith would offer the park to the schoolboys for their annual league play had an immediate effect upon many of the players in the schools. In one school, at least, where last year several good players did not choose to try out for their school team, but played on independent clubs, it was said that the big league ball park offer would be a lure too great to overcome. There is little doubt that it would be a genuine incentive to participate in and view the series.

The series is now played at Eastern High Field, whose diamond does not set any world records for levelness or vastness. The right field wall offers an easy mark to average long-fly hitters and the left field foul line runs into the stands. It is better, however, than Central Stadium, where the right field wall is within bunting distance.

St. John's Quintet Hit by Mutiny

Charges and counter-charges flew thick and fast yesterday at St. John's with basket ball as the medium of debate. The Vermont Avenue school's team of last year won the District A. A. U. 130-pound championship and also The Post prep school title.

Only one member of the triumphant 1932 team was left this year, Johnny McCarthy, seasoned center, and, according to Coach Jack Dunn, he did not fit in well with the freshmen and sophomores Dunn is concentrating on this year for future development. McCarthy was dismissed from the club for missing two Christmas holiday practices.

A group of last year's reserves, who probably would have made up the welter of this year's team, withdrew from the squad in protest and yesterday formed a club to be known as the Federals. They will compete in the A. A. U. championships in March. On the Federals will be Parkhill, Skelly, Smith, McConnell, Stock and Keegin, all of whom saw action in varsity games last year.

Coach Jack Dunn explained last night that he believed that the only chance St. John's had of climbing back on its pedestal in basket ball was to take a group of the youngest boys and begin drilling them in the fundamentals of the game, with an eye to the future. He said he guessed these tactics had caused the older boys to drift away. Two of the so-called old boys, Simone and McCullough, have remained with the young squad, which has yet to win a game.

RULE CHANGE SOUGHT BY COACHES

Increased Penalty for Incomplete Passes Is Suggested.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Reference in the 1932 football rules committee report to the fear that something might have to be done eventually about the forward pass has brought forth from prominent coaches at least three suggestions that something be done immediately.

As a result, football's "committee of twenty," representing college and high school coaches, with Lou Little, of Columbia, in the chairman's seat, will meet here early in February to draw up recommendations to the rules committee.

Definitely, the fear of rules committee that forward passing was getting out of hand and that indiscriminate tossing should be discouraged, has brought these suggestions:

Would Increase Penalty.

1. That the penalty for two successive incomplete passes be increased from 5 to 15 yards.

2. That forward passes be permitted from any point behind the scrimmage line, replacing the present restriction that the ball must be thrown from a point at least 5 yards behind the line.

3. That a forward pass caught by the defense after it has touched an ineligible receiver be ruled an intercepted pass, instead of an incomplete pass, as is the case today.

These suggestions stood out in the mind of Lou Little today as he prepared to receive members of the committee, including Dick Hanley, Jock Sutherland, Hunk Anderson, Bill Alexander, Tuss McLaughry, Fritz Crisler, Harry Kipke, Gil Doble, Elmer Layden, Bernie Bierman, Harry Stuhldreher and Harry Mehre.

The committee was formed for the first time at the annual coaches' sessions here last December. The results of its deliberations will be turned to the rules committee as suggestions for consideration at the annual meeting of the lawmakers next month.

"All we want to do," said Little today, "is help the rules committee and help football if we can. There's nothing belligerent in our attitude. We're not trying to run football. After all, in order to teach football, we have to know it and study it, and the results of that study, since the best interests of football are our best interests, should be of assistance in ruling the game.

Rules Need Few Changes.

"Personally I believe that aside from simplifying the rules, taking

Harvard to Carry Out Sports Plans

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Despite a $316,000 drop in 1932 football revenues, Harvard will not only carry on its complete sports program but will also be able to balance its 1932-33 budget, William J. Bingham, director of athletics, announced today.

He explained that $210,000 was saved by cutting all athletic association salaries, including all coaches, repairs, equipment and other expenses, and that a $40,000 surplus from last year, plus a $50,000 deferred payment from one of the anonymous donors of the new indoor athletic plant would keep Harvard sports out of red ink. He estimated salary savings alone at $25,000.

Bingham said no new shells or oars would be built for the crew, no new tackling or blocking dummies would be obtained for the football squad, and students participating in track, as well as several other sports, would be forced to supply most of their equipment.

Ever since the football gate collapse, Harvard sport teams have been actually roughing it, as compared to their predecessors of boom times. When a Harvard team travels now, it rides in day coaches instead of special Pullmans. Taxis, porters and police escorts to and from trains have been eliminated.

Immediately after embarking he went to bed. There had been no abatement in his temperature.

Bozeman Takes Lead In 3-Cushion Tourney

Chicago, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Jay Bozeman, the "baby" of the tournament, went into undisputed possession of first place in the world's three-cushion billiard championship drive today as Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, met with his first reversal in four starts.

Bozeman, a rapid-fire shotmaker from Vallejo, Calif., preceded Cochran in the day's play and came through with an easy 50-to-29 victory over the veteran Tift Denton, of Kansas City.

Bozeman's undisputed lead was held for the night when Otto Reiseit, of Philadelphia, turned back the defending champion, Augie Keickhefer, of Chicago, in a close match, 50 to 46, in 62 innings.

1,500 Watch Overtime Struggle

Old Liners Lead by 21-10 at Half in Hectic Battle.

Sheary, Augusterfer Stars in First Win Since 1924.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

IN a story book basket ball game—one of those 2-minute-to-go affairs that knocked 1,500 spectators lopsided with thrills—Catholic University last night upset Maryland 29-27 in an overtime game that took its place among the most exciting sporting events of the year. It was C. U.'s first victory over the Old Liners since 1924.

It was perhaps the worst basket ball of the year, among other things. Goaded by the most brass-lunged cheering section in the city, the C. U. undergrads, the two teams committed nearly 30 primary sins of basket ball: running with the ball and double dribbling.

The boys passed the ball high into the grandstands throughout the game, went sometimes 5 full minutes without being able to score, missed shots by yards and fell while in the clear, but their miscues seemed so evenly divided that they added immensely to the enjoyment and suspense of the game.

Reminded of Football In Spots.

Action on the court was a hybrid of football, water polo and basket ball, with the first named receiving the most attention, although for a while a leak in one of the side walls of the giant C. U. gymnasium threatened to turn the boys water-minded.

Nobody knows yet how C. U. won, except that the long arching shots of Eddie White and Bus Sheary, that missed by a mile in the first half, began going through in the second, and the Marylands, so far out in front at one time that C. U. needed the Mount Wilson telescope to detect them, suddenly swung back into sight and dropped behind. Catholic University trailed from the start fintil just as the regulation game closed, when Gene Augusterfer came through with a perfect shot, flung from the side of the court like one of Bill Dickey's pegs. C. U. snared its only lead of the game in the extra period.

The first half of the game can be dismissed by simply stating that Maryland played intelligent basket ball, working the horsehide down the floor with standard plays and hipping the C. U.'s out of the way in time to sink the basket. The C. U.'s, in the first half, played as if they had just chosen up sides. Some of the scores were 10—2, 19—7, and finally 21—10.

Maryland "Hot Hands" Cool Off.

A hasty glance through the "Lives of the Saints of the Church" does not show a guardian and patron of basket ball, but Coach Forrest Cotton evidently knew him intimately and introduced his boys to him during the recent period. Suffice to say that amid some of the most scrambled plays of the year the C. U.'s held Maryland to one miserable field goal throughout the remainder of the game. It was a combination of superb and aggressive guarding and a sudden cooling off of the Maryland hot hands.

The C. U. rally that eventually spelled victory started about three minutes after the start of the half. Augusterfer got up off the floor after being tackled, dribbled down the long gymnasium and slipped one in. Sheary let one fly from near the middle and the rally was on. Maryland frantically saw its lead hacked away unceremoniously by the long-shooting geniuses of the opposing outfit.

When Maryland finally led by only one basket, 26-24, the C. U. stands went crazy with glee, but almost had heart failure when the C. U.'s, evidently now well on the way to victory, suddenly cooled off and played five of the last six minutes of the game without tallying a point.

MAT VARIETY IS OFFERED TONIGHT

Pesek Faces Vassell, Judson, Clinstock Will Battle.

ONE of the odd facts about tonight's rassling card at the Washington Auditorium is the presence of two wrestlers on the bill, totally surrounded by rasslers. An investigation committee was formed yesterday to see how they managed to get in, and what steps, if any, might be taken to lure more of their breed into the mat stockade.

The wrestlers are Johnny Pesek and Frank Judson. Of course, they don't meet each other—meetings between wrestlers and wrestlers were what ruined the financial end of the game—but they are on the card, which is, of course, the important part. Pesek takes on George Vassell in his presentation. Vassell is one of the flying-dive boys, who can leer very well and has a knack of turning complete turns in the air and landing on his feet when tossed by flying-mare holds. Judson meets Jim Clinstock, the Indian footballer.

Wrestlers Are Very Scientific.

The line of demarcation between wrestlers and rasslers has long since been established, but in the event there is any doubt remaining in the room it might be stated that wrestlers go about their trade very scientifically, utilizing the holds perfected centuries ago and minimizing showmanship to anthill proportions. Rasslers believe that a sock in the jaw is the only telling hold inside the ring and rule their conduct thereby.

Besides the Pesek-Vassell and the Judson-Clinstock matches, there will be a third of the finish affairs on tap tonight in which Joe Savoldi, the Notre Dame gridman, meets dependable Johnny Maxos.

Hans Kampfer, who can both wrestle and rassle, meets Gino Garibaldi in a 30-minute match which doubtless will be a draw. They rank close to the top of their professions. Jacques Humberto and Floyd Marshall round out the card.

The first growl is at 8:30 o'clock. Women are admitted free if escorted by paying customers, and, incidentally, Pesek is one of the four world's champions now in circulation.

Gene Sarazen Leaves Hospital for Florida

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—After shoving his pockets full of medicine bottles, Gene Sarazen left here tonight for Miami and the Florida golf tournaments.

"I feel fine," said the holder of the American and British open titles. "In another two weeks I expect to be fully recovered."

GOLD STEP MAKES IT TWO IN ROW IN HIALEAH FEATURE RACE

Nose Decides Duel With Don Leon

Dark Polish, 114-1, Wins Baby Race After Long Delay.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 25 (A. P.).—A large midweek crowd roared its appreciation as Gold Step, the much improved gelding, which won the Hialeah Inaugural Handicap for Mrs. S. H. Fairbanks, came right back with a fine exhibition of gameness to capture the Seminole Handicap here this afternoon. Running head and head with the fleet Don Leon right from the start of the 6-furlong trip, the gelded son of Sweep On held on like a little bull dog to earn the decision by a nose. The Anall Stable's Larranaga was third, two lengths back.

The winner was a close second choice to Larranaga, returning $5.60. As in the inaugural, Gold Step's time was 1:12 flat.

Larranga Not at Top Form.

Larranaga, even though conceding weight to the field, does not appear to be up to his Eastern form. He was always clear while following the hot pace within striking distance.

Gold Step dashed to the front, but could not shake off Don Leon, the winner maintaining a head advantage to the last sixteenth, where Don Leon managed to cut the margin down to a nose in the closing strides. Larranaga was driving hard to beat Curacao by a half length for the show.

Form players began the day right when they selected Ebony Lady to take the purse in the initial contest. The winner was saddled by former Jockey Jack Howard, whose luck on Florida tracks is well known. Ebony Lady completed the 6 furlongs with a good two-length advantage over Below Cost, while the latter saved the place from Golden Fate by a half length. The favorite broke fast and led all the way, while Golden Fate lost the place in the final strides. Ebony Lady paid $2.80 for $2.

Fifteen baby racers delayed the start of the second race 37 minutes before Starter George Cassidy could get the unwieldy batch of green fillies away in order. This is one of the longest waits in modern times, but there have been delays of more than an hour in earlier days of the sport.

The crowd got a big thrill when Dark Polish, the winner, paid $229.90 for a $2 straight ticket, by far the longest winning price at this meeting. The daughter of Brooms registered by a length and a half. Macadam nosed Miss Mouse out of the place. The winner drew clear in a bristling drive. Three horses, Wise Daughter, the favorite; High Glee and Miss Mouse ran practically the entire quarter-mile distance in a false start. The barrier went up on the inside but not on the outside.

D. & H. Five Lands Community Feature

Delaware and Hudson made a strong finish to defeat Naval Reserves in the only game in "B" division of the Community Center League last night. The score was 26 to 17.

In Section A, Swann Service scored a thrilling 34-to-33 victory over Utah State Society, while Calvary Drakes won a doubleheader, trimming Sigma Phi Lambda, 48-to-16 and Superintendent of Documents, 45 to 15.

AT THE POST

DEAR AL: MIAMI, JANUARY 25.

Well, old kid, I hate to pull that first and second choice stuff but I can't overlook a chance to get in a good word for that modest Bennings fellow. Today, six of the seven winners were named either on top or second by the well known selector. I sent Mike out to the track this morning for some workouts. When he came back with a big grin on his face I thought he had dug up the winner of the 1934 Kentucky Derby but he had won $1.92 from some stable boys in a crap game. I sent him back and told him not to show up until he had found me a 10-to-1 shot. He must be still looking for it. I haven't seen him since. If he turns up with anything hot, I'll let you know. Maybe he's won himself a horse by now. BILL.

FIRST RACE—MISS CORRINE was a fair sort last fall and has been tending to her knitting here in a manner that seems to point to an early crack-down. FOXIANA showed promise in her outing here and should appear in the money column. SIS AGNES might be wagered as a show proposition.

SECOND RACE—SHILLY SHALLY did about all that could be asked of a juvenile in her first appearance. Unless there's something buried in the field with a lot of foot, SHILLY SHALLY will make it two in a row. Bubbling Ways is a well-bred youngster. DAVOC for the show.

THIRD RACE—Mike spotted PERNICKETY closing with a rush in the back of a field the other day and called my attention. We both agreed that this one is ripe for a killing and although scratches will be needed to get PERNICKETY into the action, we could not pass up the opportunity of letting you in on it. CONVENTIONAL and CRAPSHOOTER for the rest.

FOURTH RACE—PROTRACTOR is on the improve and gets the call here. ORMESBY comes off distance races and may not like a sprint. On the other hand, FINITE, the bad-legged, is too undependable to be placed any higher than third.

FIFTH RACE—BANK SHOT passed along the indicator the last time with that rousing place effort and seems good enough to hold this field safe. IREDEL to take the measure of SEYMOUR for the place award.

SIXTH RACE—It's just possible that GARLIC is up to a winning effort. This veteran was in sensational form in the closing days at Bowie but his handlers just missed getting him home on two occasions. If not tomorrow, tab along. WISHING STAR and GABBO, one that will bare watching, to complete the money picture.

SEVENTH RACE—SOLACE took it on the chin the last time out but showed that a victory is not far off. Must take DODGSON, I believe. SEA FOX is about ready for that race that failed to materialize in Maryland last fall.

Bouts Listed Tonight At Wash. Canoe Club

The first of a series of athletic nights to be staged by the Washington Canoe Club will be held tonight beginning at 8 o'clock when the canoe club boxers and wrestlers entertain the Boys Club mittmen and grapplers in a series of bouts.

It is part of a program by the club, a member of the A. A. U. here, to build up interest in amateur ring and mat sport.

MARYLAND BEATEN BY C. U. FIVE, 29-27

Nothing they did could give them those two insignificant points and it was almost when their hopes were extinguished that Augusterfer came through with his tying basket, and the game ended at 26-26, with Sheary winding up a shot from midfloor.

Eddie White started off the extra period with a mile-long shot from the side of the court, for a 28-26 lead. Then, in one of the most exciting plays of the night, Spencer Chase, who never seemed to get started and who had been a constant violator of the adolescent running-with-the-ball rule, got loose from the tangle of arms and legs and sped down the floor yards ahead of everybody, but as he sank what was ostensibly the tying basket, Referee Orrel Mitchell detected that he had been guilty of double dribbling and ruled it out. Rufe Vincent, Maryland center, had a chance to tie the score immediately after, but made only one of his two fouls. With two minutes left, and the score still 28 to 27, Vincent shook himself loose and flipped in the "winning" basket, but the officials vetoed it and called for a jump ball.

Ed White's foul, with less than a minute to go, manufactured the final tally of an eccentric but enormously interesting intracity game.

FEW GRID CHANGES SOUGHT BY COACHES

away the ambiguity that exists in some places, they should be let alone. Last year's changes worked out very well, I think. A little attention to the forward pass is about all I can see that is necessary."

Increasing the penalty for successive incomplete forward passes is Little's idea, however. Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, is responsible for the suggestion that passes be permitted anywhere behind the scrimmage line.

Among other possible changes that will be discussed is "Pop" Warner's idea of awarding a point for each first down, and the suggestion, approved by almost all coaches, that the ball be brought in 15 yards any time it gets closer than 5 yards to a sideline, without loss of a down.

Under the present rules a team with the ball a few feet from the sideline must waste a down carrying the leather outside.

KENNEDY AND GALLAGHER MATCHED

Heavies in Feature Fight Tuesday in Portner's Ring.

THE heavyweight boys will have their fling in Portner's Arena next Tuesday night. A former favorite, Marty Gallagher, who was booed and hissed when mention of his name was made by Prof. Jimmy Lake last Tuesday, will return to the Alexandria squared circle for an 8-round engagement with Les Kennedy, 190-pound Montanan, who created a furore on the Pacific Coast a few years ago by virtue of victories over Max Baer, Dynamite Jackson and other hot shots in that section.

Gallagher and Kennedy will feature the weekly benefit program, while two more heavyweights, Big Bob Tow, 185-pound Birmingham, Ala., giant, and Herman Weiner, Baltimore's popular left hook artist, will trade blows over the eight-round route in the semiwindup.

Three Four-Rounders to Be Added.

Three four-rounders, featuring fast and aggressive youngsters, will be added by Promoter Frank Mann.

Kennedy, possessing a wicked right, made his debut at Portner's a few weeks ago, outpointing and outjabbing Bob Godwin, Adele, Ga., pride, in an eight-round victory that won the former coal miner a legion of friends. Quite a cheer was given Kennedy when he was introduced in the ring Tuesday night.

Until Donald (Red) Barry began stepping into fast company under the wing of one Mushky Jackson, Gallagher for some years was the heavyweight toast of the rank and file of District folk. Then Gallagher started slipping, Barry began climbing. The answer is Gallagher is still in Washington, and Barry is being groomed for a shot at Ernie Schaaf.

Gallagher claims he still possesses his old fire. He has been training daily to whip himself into prime condition, and his friends say he will whale the daylight out of Kennedy. Gallagher won and lost to Barry. He won from Herman Weiner and lost to Natie Brown and Bob Tow. Gallagher tips the beam at 207 pounds.

Kennedy in Training at Portner's.

Kennedy parked himself temporarily at Alexandria a week ago and has been working out at Portner's. He will be seconded by Jimmy Erwin.

Weiner and Tow need no introduction. Weiner lost to Paul Berlenbach at Laurel back in 1931, but held Barry to a draw. Tow was felled on the ear by Joe Knight and lost by a technical knockout in the third round at Twin City in September. A week later he whipped Knight's chief trainer, Ray Swanson.

ROOSEVELT'S FIVE WINS BY 26-18

Emerson Defeated in Thriller; Sherman, Harris Stars.

IN a game featured by the tight guarding of both teams, Roosevelt High School uncorked a whirlwind fourth quarter drive to conquer Emerson Institute yesterday afternoon on the former's court, 26 to 18.

The two teams set perhaps a season's record for stellar defensive work in the first quarter, which ended with Emerson leading, 1 to 0. At half time, Roosevelt came into its own, and was in front, 7 to 6. From then on Coach Woodward's team dominated the situation.

With Harris and Sherman finding the nets for three field goals each, Roosevelt swept to a 15-11 lead going into the final semester. Lucas scored seven markers for Emerson.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

PLANS for broadcasting the inauguration of President-elect Roosevelt on March 4 are rapidly nearing completion. Both networks will use every facility at their disposal in order to obtain complete coverage. From the moment President-elect Roosevelt leaves his hotel to go to the White House to meet President Hoover until the ceremonies are over, the networks will be on the air continuously with the proceedings.

The N. B. C. plans to have at least 15 microphone positions, 5 mobile short-wave transmitters in the air and on the ground, 32 engineers, 10 announcers and 12 observers. Huge parabolic microphones along the line of march will pick up the music of the bands and the cheering of the throng which will crowd Washington.

Columbia also plans to cover every move of President-elect Roosevelt and every point of importance from the Capitol, at one end of Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues, to the White House, on the other, from the ground and from the air.

Both networks, by means of nearly a dozen powerful short-wave stations, will send their descriptions of the event all over the world.

THE price for a single seat for the forthcoming Wagnerian cycle, including performances of "Tannhauser" and "Tristan und Isolde," at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, is from $7.50 to $25, depending upon the location of the seat. This sounds like a high tariff, but is really the lowest price at the Metropolitan in years.

However, Washington listeners need not worry about prices, because K. H. Berkeley, manager of WRC, hopes to give us as many operas in this series as possible.

At any rate, Mr. Berkeley has the first of the Ring operas, "Das Rheingold," scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. The broadcast will include a portion of the second act and the entire third and fourth acts and will last from 3:15 until 5 o'clock.

"Die Walkure" will be given Thursday afternoon, February 2; "Siegfried," Thursday, February 9; "Gotterdammerung," Friday, February 17, "Tannhauser" will be performed on Wednesday, February 22, and "Tristan und Isolde," Friday, March 3.

This Wagnerian series is an added feature and entirely separate from the regular Saturday afternoon broadcasts from the Metropolitan. The opera this Saturday, by the way, is "La Traviata" with Bori and Tibbett. It will be broadcast in its entirety.

AMONG those who heard a broadcast of a composition, "Memoirs de Nevin," by the Nordica Mandolin and Guitar Orchestra over Station WOL in Washington, was Miss Jennie M. Austin, a cousin of Ethelbert Nevin. It was a medley of Nevin's compositions, "A Day in Venice," "The Rosary" and "Narcissus," arranged for the use of the Nordica Club by the late B. W. DeLoss, a member of the orchestra for many years.

Miss Austin wrote to Mrs. Ethelbert Nevin, widow of the composer, who lives in New York, and later at the former's suggestion, Walter T. Holt, director of the club, sent Mrs. Nevin a copy of the music.

"I want to thank you from my heart for the manuscript of the music of my husband for your mandolin and guitar orchestra," Mrs. Nevin replied. "How much I would enjoy hearing it, and it would give me great pleasure to send you the 'Venetian Love Song,' although I don't think it is published separately from 'A Day in Venice.' However, I will autograph the number that you like best."

To complete the story, Mr. Holt is now not only in possession of a de luxe copy of "A Day in Venice," autographed by Mrs. Nevin, but in addition she thoughfully affixed an autograph of Ethelbert Nevin to the copy, which she clipped from some of his writings.

A day and a night such as a show boat has seldom seen will run its course on Capt. Henry's Show Boat tonight, when it pulls into Point Pleasant, La., for a full hour's entertainment.

It's a wedding day! Maria Sparks, Capt. Henry's sister, is getting married to Walter Jameson, Mary Lou's long-lost father, and everybody from Capt. Henry to Don Voorhees is going to strike up the band from morn till eve.

THE first sound snapshots of the actual songs of wild birds ever made in America will be broadcast over the WEAF network, but not WRC, at 6:45 o'clock tonight by Orestes H. Caldwell, former Federal Radio Commissioner.

Using the sound-recording truck of the American Museum of Natural History, Albert R. Brand, internationally known expert on bird life, after long, painstaking effort during early morning vigils, succeeded in collecting these pioneer sound-photographs of the principal North American songsters, which will be heard during the coming broadcast.

Some of these bird songs reach notes of 6,000 cycles per second and higher, which is above the highest note on the piano, affording an interesting test of the frequency-response limits of the modern radio set. Only high-quality, full-range radio sets permit these top notes of birds' songs to be heard in their full rounded beauty.

A half-hour version of "Rasputin and the Empress" will be presented by the Northern Dramatic Company, by arrangement with Loew's Columbia Theater. The leads will be played by Ronald Dawson, Yvonne Kushmer and Don Austin. The motion picture will open at Columbia tomorrow night.

Capt. Giles Stedman, skipper of the liner American Merchant and hero of the latest sea rescue, will be the principal speaker during a broadcast from the New York Advertising Club, where a luncheon in his honor will be held this afternoon (WJSV, 1:15 o'clock).

AFTER a long absence from radio, Old Gold returns to the Columbia network, including WJSV, with a weekly half-hour presentation that will feature Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians and a comedian yet to be selected. The first broadcast is set for Wednesday, February 8 * * * Lanny Ross now tells about that Philadelphia baby that has been named after him. It was decided to call him "Ross," because Lanny couldn't feature the boy starting life with "Lancelot," his first name, as a handle. The boy's mother followed Lanny's suggestion * * * The highly romantic story of "The New Moon" will be unfolded against a background of Sigmund Romberg's melodies during the Aborn Opera Company's Five Star Theater performance at 10 o'clock tonight over WJSV * * *

Eugenie Leontovich, star of "Twentieth Century" and "Grand Hotel," Willie and Eugene Howard, Lyda Roberti and Ray Bolger will be guest artists when Rudy Vallee makes his debut as a Gilbert and Sullivan soloist in the light opera company which he has assembled for the broadcast (WRC, 8 p. m.).

The light opera singers, selected by Vallee, will present selections from "The Mikado."

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question—We have no children of our own, although we love children of our neighborhood. Would it be taking a "long chance" to adopt one from a home?

Answer—This is a question I am continually called upon to answer. From the sincerity of your letter and your financial ability I should say that you are an ideal couple to adopt a child. I do not believe it to be a "long chance" to take into one's home a little bundle of humanity and give it fatherhood and motherhood.

Provided that within your hearts you have answered every question of your fitness and your capacity for love, notwithstanding all the potential worry, then I say adopt.

Some intangible something will come into your lives that will more than repay you in the years to come, which without children may be lonely and sad.

I do not say pick at random, nor yet with too many provisos. I believe any little heart, with a soul whose very breath is of God will, with care, love and suitable surroundings bring a message into your home from the High Throne of Heaven.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Rammed Warship Safe In Harbor at San Diego

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The 310-foot destroyer Dahlgren, damaged in a collision 300 miles at sea yesterday, reached San Diego Bay safely shortly after noon today. The warship entered the bay under her own power and proceeded to the destroyer base, 6 miles down the bay, where repairs will be made.

The Dahlgren's rudder jammed during maneuvers and she was rammed by a sister ship, the Tarbell. The Tarbell was not damaged and proceeded with 11 other destroyers toward Honolulu for fleet concentration. The Dahlgren was convoyed to port by two other destroyers.

KING OF THE JUNGLE - By CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, a 4-year-old white boy, is found in the heart of the jungle by Kali, a powerful lioness, and is raised by her in the midst of the lion family, together with her two lion cubs, Ruka and Dozo. While possessing most of the characteristics of the lions, Kaspa is at a disadvantage because he lacks claws and fangs with which to hunt and to kill his enemies. When a strange lion, Bulu, intrudes upon the pack and chases him away, Kaspa is powerless to defend himself. One day he surprises a native in the woods who throws a knife at him. Kaspa picks up the knife and hits the man with it, nearly ripping his head off. Now, at last, he has a substitute for the lions' fangs and claws.

CHAPTER V.

WITH dusk, Kaspa awoke and turned to his treasure. The knife was a fine European weapon with a double-edged, 10-inch blade and a horn handle, from which curved two metal projections forming a solid hilt. It had originally belonged to an official who had once visited that district, from whom it had been stolen by the man Kaspa had killed. He weighted it in his hand and found it heavy and balanced, unlike any stick he had ever grasped. He pondered the uses to which it might be put, as yet not dreaming to what uses he would put it. He remembered the stone with which the man had rubbed it, and decided he must find that and apply it to a similar purpose.

He returned to the forest, where he found the dead body already torn by the hyenas. The ghouls departed in haste at his growls and the smell of him, and he searched the man with the hyenas sitting watching, as they always watched him when he was thus occupied with a kill.

The native wore a goat-skin robe, and beneath this a girdle of monkey-skin to which was attached a pouch. In the pouch were many things, snuff horn, a needle, a flint and some caked tobacco and lastly the stone. To Kaspa it was a very ordinary stone, but he knew that it had its uses. It seemed desirable to keep it in the receptacle used by the man, so he untied the thong and attempted to fasten it about his own body, but this he found beyond his ability. He could undo a knot, but he could not tie one.

This set his active brain to work. Attached to the main thong, which acted as a belt, was a lesser strip of softened hide supporting the pouch. In it were two knots.

Kaspa undid one of them carefully, observing the twists and turns of the thong. He then attempted to replace it as it had been. After a time he succeeded. It was then simple to gird himself with the belt, with its monkey-skin breech clout. He had no use for the latter, but he required the pouch, and it did not occur to him to separate the things. He placed the stone in the pouch and, grasping the knife in his hand, set out upon the night's hunt.

Upon a strip of level veldt he saw three tommy buck feeding in the moonlight. By careful stalking he managed to get within 50 yards of them before they ran, and when they did he selected the fattest of them and pursued it. Within a couple of miles he ran it down and, ranging up alongside the exhausted animal, leapt suddenly upon it and drove the knife into its neck. The result was all that he had hoped for; there was no further resistance from the buck.

It did not take him long to realize that the knife was a more certain instrument of death than either fang or claw. He was now armed and able to do battle with his fiercest foes. At this thought a glow of pride and exultation pervaded his being. He stood with one foot upon the body of the dead tommy and raised his voice in the full roar of the triumphant lion. It had not the power and music of old Paka's efforts, but it was sufficiently terrifying to cause the veldt dwellers to huddle together in snorting groups, and the dogs in the manyatta to break into frightened barking. Kaspa slung his kill over his shoulder and strode down to the river there to eat in comfort.

His meal finished, he stowed the remainder of the meat in a treefork, as a leopard does, out of the way of hyenas and vultures, and made his way up from the river valley toward the nearest of the manyatta. He had acquired an interest in man and the things of man's making. The manyatta was not a large one. It contained half a dozen families of Bomogo, a like number of cattle and some sheep.

The boma was made of 5-foot posts driven into the earth and reenforced by stacked thorn bushes. The six huts were built against the interior of this, their flat mud roofs on a level with its top. The clear space in the middle was occupied by the cattle. Kaspa made the circuit of the place, testing the wind from all directions. His nose informed him of the occupants, and his eyes showed him that no man was abroad in the moonlight. Several dogs had got his wind and they were all hysterically barking. The cattle were uneasy, snorting loudly their fear at the lion reek, but no man issued from the huts to quell the uproar. Kaspa took two swift paces and sprang lightly over the barrier into the sand of the cattle yard. He crouched there motionless, waiting.

The dogs fled to cover by the huts, where they hid, snarling and whimpering; the sheep huddled against the further boma; but one young bull lowered his head and charged the intruder with determination. Kaspa snarled, leaped lightly aside and struck the plunging beast in the neck with his knife. The bull fell forward on his knees, bellowing mournfully.

The dogs immediately rushed him in a wave of furious snapping forms. They were careful not to close, contenting themselves with jumping in and out again, feinting at his legs and throat. Kaspa leapt to meet the foremost, eager to get his hands on these presumptuous creatures and break them to pieces, but they eluded him like shadows, and, as those before melted away from his advance, those behind closed in.

He was astonished. These were the tactics of wild dogs with an oryx or a wildebeeste, but he had never thought to see a lion so treated. He knew his danger; it was imperative to damage some of the animals at once before they closed upon him and overwhelmed him by their numbers. He made a sideways feint, whirled and leaped, and a howling dog was hurled against the boma with a crash that broke most of the bones in its body.

The cries of the dogs and the short coughing roars of the lion-man made a noise sufficient to wake the dead. It awakened the terrified Bomego, who proceeded to blow up their smoldering fires and beat drums and tins with the object of scaring the intruder. Kaspa had heard that sound before. He was reminded of Mua fastened to the tree while the screeching ape creatures closed in upon her. Silent as he had come, he leaped the stockade and vanished into the night, leaving pandemonium behind him.

He returned to the river at a slow trot, pondering the ways of men. They were not the powerful beings he had thought them to be. They were evidently afraid of him, and singularly helpless at night.

Their dogs were more dangerous than themselves because of their pack tactics. Massed aggression seemed to be the hunting custom of men. They were forceful enough when they closed in upon Mua and shot her to death, and on that occasion they had not shown much fear of the other lions.

He concluded that men, like dogs, were only to be feared in numbers and in daylight. They could inflict harm at a distance, as witness the fate of Mua and his own experience when the man threw the knife at him, but their principal weapon was noise, which confused and affrightened their antagonist. Obviously one must tackle these people only by night, and then without allowing the noise they made to upset one's nerves. He disliked noise extremely, but not in the same way that the true lions did; them it drove frantic. He decided that men were foolish creatures who ran about shouting and doing nothing when an enemy was at the mouth of their lair.

It was a warm night, and he spent the remainder of it happily disporting himself in the river. This predilection for bathing had been a source of astonishment to the lions. It was all very well to swim when you wanted to cross a deep place, but to play about in the water like an otter was most uncomfortable. Kaspa had caught the habit from the wart hogs.

They invariably cooled themselves in the river and were fond of lying in the mud. One hot day in the low country when the flies had annoyed him he had copied the example of the wild pigs with considerable enjoyment. Later he had noticed that other creatures, such as elephants and water buck, also indulged in this amusement, which confirmed his liking for it. He did not swim very well, the speedy strokes were beyond him, but at the dog paddle, which is the natural method of four-footed beast, he did long distances in the big rivers. His endurance was astonishing, and he could remain under water for long periods.

While he was swimming about on this occasion the elephant herd came down out of the forest to this deep pool for their nightly bath. Kaspa lay on a low bough and watched the huge creatures playing in the water, squirting each other with their trunks and screaming loud enough to be heard miles away.

He reflected that the elephants were extremely careless of all other things in the wild. They made no attempt at concealment. A foolish way of going on, he thought it, for unobstrusiveness had become a part of his nature. Toward dawn he returned to the cave and lay down to bask in the sun at its entrance.

He had fallen into a doze in which strange dreams troubled him, dreams wherein he seemed to be lying in a house with white faces bending over him, when a faint vague murmur of sound penetrated to his mind. He roused himself and listened. The sound of men's voices was distinctly audible. He went swiftly to the edge of the donga, climbed up and looked out.

A herd of men came slowly across the plain accompanied by numerous dogs, who were held on thongs and tugged away at their masters, craning their noses eager'y to the ground. Kaspa's lips writhed back from his teeth as he watched. He knew they were on his trail, and he remembered the fate of Mua.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

CLARENCE E. WILLARD, the man who grows at will, has spent about 30 years increasing and decreasing his height for the amusement and sometimes amazement of his friends and audiences. He can increase his height from 5 feet 10¾ inches to 6 feet 4¾ inches by muscular control of the joints.

Willard relates interesting stories centering about his ability to grow 6 inches in a few seconds. Once, he says, a woman with whom he was dancing fainted when, to her amazement, he grew from an average height of less than 6 feet to a giant of nearly 6½ feet tall.

It took him several years to perfect his stunt of increasing his height. X-ray pictures fail to reveal any appreciable extension in any one joint, but with all the many minute differences added up, Willard's height increases 6 inches.

Spike Webb is the only man in the history of the United States' participation in the Olympic games to be head coach of a team in four different Olympic meets. Webb coached the United States boxing teams in 1920-24-28-32, winning for this country three world championships.

Webb is the boxing coach at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ELMER TWITCHELL WRITES GENE SARAZEN ABOUT LARGER GOLF CUPS.

DEAR GENE:

Nothing has stirred me in years like your proposal that all cups on putting greens be doubled in size. It is the most constructive suggestion made by any man in American life during the last decade; in fact, the adoption of your idea would lead the way out of the depression.

• • • •

What is the real trouble with America today? It is dissatisfied, despondent, discouraged. And what caused this as much as anything else? Those missed putts!

• • • •

It is true that most of the long faces in this country today are attributed to business, but you have no idea how many of them are due to inability to get down in better than three or four putts on any green. Make it possible for the average golfer to sink his putts more easily, and you will see the mists of depression fade away as the bright sunshine of renewed optimism envelops this fair land.

• • • •

Personally, I think you are too conservative in proposing an 8-inch cup. That is only about twice the size of the present cup, and from what I have seen of golfers the mere doubling of the cup would be hardly noticed. The putting I have seen has been so poor that the cup could be three or four times as large and still make no difference.

• • • •

I realize, of course, that you must be careful and not make the hole so big that the golfers will fall into it themselves before they get the ball in. It would be pretty humiliating to have it get around the club that a feller had been badly bruised up through stepping into a cup by accident while trying to sink his fifth putt.

• • • •

Still, I favor a cup at least 30 inches in circumference, and I would even go a step further and urge that there be more than one cup to each green.

• • • •

This may seem radical, but it would help the game. One cup to the green is not enough. This has been clear for years, if you have observed the players on any links, and it strikes me that it would sort of open up the game if the rules committee provided three or maybe four cups per green, with the rules clearly stating that a putt could be counted as sunk whether it went into the hole you were aiming at or not.

• • • •

Would you think this matter of the Duplex or Triplex Cup over and let me hear from you? Every golfer to whom I have spoken says it is the answer to his prayer. Yours truly, ELMER TWITCHELL.

TROUBLE AHEAD.

Prof. Einstein's suggestion that the world's problems be put up to the 25 best minds might not accomplish much, but it would certainly provide some swell scraps. Imagine, for example, Dr. Einstein, Mussolini, Bernard Shaw, Charles Evans Hughes, Mahatma Gandhi, Signor Marconi, Eugene O'Neill and that other great intellect, Prince Mike Romanoff, trying to agree on something in one huddle!

Charges of Extortion Voided by Police Board

Charges of extortion brought against Private James S. McWhirt of the Second Precinct by operators of a restaurant in the 1600 block of First street northwest, were dismissed by the Police Trial Board yesterday, but it was recommended that the policeman be transferred to another precinct.

The trial board also heard the case against Private William E. Atkinson of the Ninth Precinct, who is alleged to have run amuck on Pennsylvania avenue near Nineteenth street southeast last September, firing several shots and threatening several persons. The board withheld its verdict, pending action on his retirement.

New Veterans' Society Will Convene Tonight

The newly organized Ex-Servicemen's National Progressive Democratic League will meet at 8 o'clock this evening at the Sign of the Lion, 1328 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Officers will be installed at the meeting in addition to other business. Judge Robert E. Mattingly will administer the oath to the new officials. Gov. Ritchie, invited to address the group, has indicated a possibility he may be present.

Gratitude

Canary Fails to Show It So Rifton Family Is Disconsolate.

Little Pete, a pet and most exemplary canary was given the range of the J. P. Rifton apartment at 2700 Q street northwest, when the family was dining. Little Pete contributed much to each meal with songs. His cutest trick was to perch on Mr. Rifton's shoulder and sing for crumbs.

Tuesday came, a spring-like day. When his cage was opened he hopped out and trilled his best trill. Seeing the window open was too much, so Pete flitted out without a reflection concerning his next meal.

The Rifton family are dubious about little Pete's ability to shuffle for himself, as the nights are still cold. They want little Pete back. If he is found, they would like the finder to return him.

PEPCO RATE PARLEY MAY BE RESUMED BY DISTRICT OFFICIALS

Bride Believed to Be Seeking Reconciliation After Last Week's Split.

The Public Utilities Commission and the Potomac Electric Power Co. again may resume negotiations on the same basis as that which led last week to a break with People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, it was indicated yesterday after S. R. Bowen, counsel for the power company, had conferred for the second successive day with Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission.

Gen. Patrick declined to reveal the nature of the conference or the plans of the commission, but he intimated that the several attorneys involved in last week's controversy may be brought together. Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, who sided with Mr. Keech in the legal snarl which broke up the last parley, has conferred with the commission this week, and it is believed that he may be trying to effect a reconciliation.

Fate of Litigation.

Whether an agreement can be reached regarding the proposed termination of litigation over the commission's sliding scale for fixing electric rates is, of course, conjectural.

Despite differences of opinion as to the legal interpretation of the final document proposed last week, the commission and Mr. Keech are apparently in accord on their insistence that any compromise will preserve the District Supreme Court's ruling that the utilities body has the authority to fix electric rates without the consent either of the court or the power company.

Officials of the power company have sought to eliminate this opinion and to revive the discarded consent decree with a modified sliding scale. And, although Mr. Bowen agreed with William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, that the final draft of last week's proposed decree would preserve the commission's victory over the old consent decree and although he indicated his approval, the power company has not yet officially announced its consent to such an arrangement.

Would Apply February 1.

Any settlement of the controversy obviously then depends upon whether the power company will acknowledge the right of the commission to fix rates independently. Once this agreement is clearly achieved, the legal document for filing in the Supreme Court can be easily and unambiguously drafted.

Although the commission abruptly broke off negotiations last week and threw the blame on the people's counsel for his insistence on clarity in the proposed decree, it is known that he would readily consent to a new document provided the power company will make such acknowledgment.

Whether or not the negotiations to terminate the litigation are resumed, conferences will be held within the next few days on the question of reducing the electric rate for this year as of February 1.

Joseph Barry Indicted In Alleged Rival's Death

The District Grand Jury yesterday indicted Joseph T. Barry on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Israel Seigel, last December, in front of 3130 Eleventh street northwest.

A difference over the affections of Mrs. Ruth M. Goebel is said to have led to the killing, according to information placed before the grand jury. Barry, arrested shortly after Seigel was shot, is in District Jail.

Robber Gets $25 In Laundry Holdup

Man Escapes After Forcing Woman to Kneel Under Counter.

A Negro robber yesterday escaped with $25 loot after holding up Mrs. Laura Botler, 30, lone attendant at the Elite Laundry branch, Ninth and N streets northwest. Mrs. Botler was forced to kneel beneath the counter by the bandit until he fled in a waiting cab.

Mrs. Botler said the man entered and asked for change for a dollar bill. When she turned to comply with the request, he said:

"All right, give me the works," thrusting his pocket out as if he held a gun. A similar method has been employed by several Negro and white bandits recently in holding up laundry branches.

IMPROVED BUSINESS MORALE HELD VITAL

President of Rotary International Speaks Before Washington Club.

The spirit of self-sacrifice, plus loyalty and good fellowship among business men are in greatest need in times of depression when "changes for the better depend largely upon an improved business morale," Clinton P. Anderson, president of the Rotary International, told Washington Rotarians at a luncheon meeting yesterday in the Willard Hotel.

Business men, he said, tend to concentrate their thought and activities upon their own particular vocations with resulting restrictions in their field of personal acquaintance and in their participation in civic and community enterprises. Through mutual cooperative action, he said, such as is made possible by a service club, good fellowship is fostered and the opportunity is afforded to the member to apply his own particular social and civic talents in such manner as to yield most benefit to the community.

Mr. Anderson was once managing editor of the Morning Journal in Albuquerque, N. Mex. He is now treasurer of a loan and mortgage company in Albuquerque.

The scheduled speaker for the day, introduced by President Arthur C. Christie, was Benjamin Cohen, Charge d'Affaires of the Chilean Embassy. Among the special guests were Gov. E. H. Johnson, of the Fifty-sixth Rotary District, and Oliver Short, governor of the Thirty-fourth Rotary District, which includes the Washington Club.

Yaden Urges Group To Time Activities

Rhode Island Citizens Elect George L. Gee as President.

"We don't begin to fight at the right time," James G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Association, told members of the Rhode Island Citizens Association at their meeting at the Sherwood Presbyterian Church last night, in a criticism of the work of the citizen groups. He advocated early and sustained action in effecting civic improvement.

William E. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, addressed the association on the proposed traction and gas company mergers. Members of the organization adopted a resolution advocating a cash appropriation so that the Woodridge subbranch of the Public Library could operate full time.

Officers elected were: George L. Gee, president; Ora E. Haines and Mrs. Paul O. Davis, vice presidents; Julian F. Belfield, secretary; Wallace E. Perry, assistant secretary; William S. Torbert, treasurer, and Harold S. Huggins, financial secretary. Thomas J. Llewellyn and Edward G. Sievers were elected as delegates to the federation of associations.

Gonzaga Mid-year Dance.

The mid-year dance of the Gonzaga High School will be held at the Willard Hotel tomorrow night. Students in charge of arrangements include Richard E. Hall, James T. Barbour, J. Carleton Gartner, Joseph M. Dawson, Thomas E. Burke, George Fleury, Wendell P. Jarvis, and Frederick J. Horigan.

Nearly 500 representatives and past grand of the city were in attendance. Mr. Dreeben becomes the 102d grand master of the organization here.

Other officers elected were Charles B. Lampe, deputy grand master; James H. Solt, grand warden; Harry L. Andresen, grand secretary, re-elected for the tenth term, and James E. Chamberlain, grand treasurer.

Wilfred E. Lawson, past grand master and past grand patriarch, was unanimously chosen as grand representative for the third term of two years, to represent this jurisdiction in the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

Past Grand Lemuel H. Windsor was reelected as representative to the I. O. O. F. board of trustees for the term of two years. Past Grand Chalmers F. Groff was reelected to serve on the board of trustees for the Grand Lodge for the term of one year.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

When the rain is coming down in sheets and the streets are wet and slippery drivers should be more careful than at any other time.

Remember that when the streets are slippery and vision is subnormal it is absolutely impossible to be able to control your machine as you could under normal conditions. You should not only drive extremely carefully to avoid accidents with other drivers, but for the safety of pedestrians as well.

The first month of the new year is rapidly drawing to a close and it is gratifying to see that the accident figures are much lower as compared with the figures recorded for the same period in 1932. They are:

Deaths	8	3
Injuries	270	223
Accidents	564	463

"Be Careful."

WINSHIP INDORSES MILITARY JUSTICE

General Advises Our Civil Courts to Follow Army Example.

Criminal procedure in civil courts is "archaic" as compared to the "pure, swift and exact justice" of the Army court martial, declared Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, judge advocate general, last night in an address before the District Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

"The latter is ideal because of its simplicity and fairness," Gen. Winship said of the court-martial procedure, while the civil court method he said "is archaic, because its technicalities, its delays and its uncertainties are rendering futile the proper administration of justice."

"A study of our military administration of justice," said Gen. Winship, will go far to furnish the solution of our troubles."

High indorsement of the Copeland bill to bestow upon Capt. Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, pioneer polar explorer, a captaincy in the Navy with immediate retirement and other honor was voiced in a resolution adopted by the society.

Capt. Baldwin, a member of the society, would, under the Copeland measure, be given the thanks of the Nation by the President and a Congressional gold medal.

"Ladies Night" was observed last night by the society, which held its gathering in the grand ballroom at the Mayflower Hotel.

Wind and Rain Due To Go Away Today

If It Had Been Colder, City Would Have Had 7 Inches of Snow.

There will be no rain today, the weather man says, and the winds that accompanied yesterday's storm and turned umbrellas inside out and made life miserable for pedestrians, will have abated.

Today, the official predicters say, will be clearing and tomorrow will be fair. Today will be slightly colder and tomorrow will be warmer. That wind reached an extreme velocity of 40 miles an hour at 9:30 o'clock last night.

And by the way—

If it had been colder, the .71 of an inch of rain that fell yesterday would have been 7 inches of snow.

APPRAISAL METHOD IS REALTORS' TOPIC AT CONCLAVE HERE

Midwinter Session of National Group Hears Opinions of Authorities.

Discussion of fundamental problems of appraisal methods by the recently formed American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers opened the annual midwinter business meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards yesterday at the Willard Hotel. It was generally agreed that upon the soundness of these methods depends the soundness of all judgments affecting real estate, including the making of mortgage loans and bond issues.

This group of appraisal experts studied the appraisal of an actual property at their all-day session. It was a two-story business building in a 100 per cent location in Elizabeth, N. J. Max Tieger, Elizabeth, N. J., gave the appraisal which was discussed by the assembly from three angles. One was the question of determining what rate of capitalization should be used in a given case or, what rate should be applied to the estimated income figure in order to arrive at the estimated capital value of a property.

Another concerned the degree to which the appraiser is able to make an accurate analysis of future income or, of future use value of a given property and the factors he should consider in making it.

Capitalization Rate.

A third was the technical question whether the land value should be considered residual to the improvement or the improvement residual to the land value.

Philip W. Kniskern, New York, president of the institute, led the discussion relative to capitalization rate. He held that in valuing improved real estate by the capitalization of net income, every dollar of net income, regardless of allocation, must be capitalized at the same rate.

He said that whenever a building is erected upon a parcel of land the building and land lose their identity to the combined whole.

A paper of Ivan A. Thorson, Los Angeles, read at this session, listed data necessary for accurate opinion as to proper investment risk represented by the type of property under discussion as including not only actual rentals for the past three years, rentals for similar properties in the town for the past five years and a list of leases existing for the property, together with the time they have to run, but also data on the responsibility of the lessees.

Discussing the question of residual value, George H. Gray, Brooklyn, N. Y., said he did not believe that any practical appraiser is capable of finding sound value by the method of valuing the land and the building separately and adding them to obtain the value. The separation could be done hypothetically, however.

The paper of Morris Goldfarb, Perth Amboy, N. J., was read. In it he discussed the question of residual value, explaining that sales do not always determine what is a fair market value of land and that sales of the depression years are no criterion of value.

Burton Thompson, Elizabeth, N. J., treating of factors of the future affecting appraisal value, declared it the duty of the appraiser to discount present conditions; to determine whether the general market is normal, sluggish or inflated and to correct his estimate accordingly.

Interest Rates Discussion.

A paper of George L. Schmutz, Los Angeles, gave a detailed discussion of interest rates, showing that over long periods of time, the rate of growth of capital throughout the world is approximately 3.5 per cent per annum, compounded.

Other speakers at the day's meeting were Walter S. Schmidt, Cincinnati; Walter R. Kuehnle, Chicago; Ralph D. Baker, Camden, N. J., Lewis R. Smith, Cincinnati; Harry E. Gilbert, Baltimore; Mark Levy, Chicago; E. L. Ostendorf, Cleveland; Joseph B. Hall, Cincinnati; Cuthbert E. Reeves, Buffalo; William H. Ballard, Boston. Additional papers read were written by A. P. Allingham, Buffalo; A. N. Gitterman, New York; Percival V. Bowen, Buffalo; Frank D. Hall, New York.

There was an informal reception for members of the association in the Cabinet room of the Willard Hotel last night.

Today the national association will hold its first general session and its members will visit President Hoover at the White House at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon. There will be a reception to association officers and delegates at the National Museum this evening, followed by a dance in the small ballroom of the Willard Hotel.

6 MEN ARE INDICTED IN PAY ROLL MURDER

Four Charged With First-Degree and Two Others as Accessories.

Five days after Einer R. Ecklund, paymaster of the Browning Painting Co., subcontractors in the new House Office Building, was shot and killed in a vain attempt to rob him of a $2,000 pay roll the District grand jury indicted four men for the actual murder and named two more as being accessories.

Those charged with first-degree murder are Claude Myers, 28; Fewell Workman, 23, both colored, and both charged with being the "trigger men;" Albert E. Cash, 20, the taxicab driver, who is believed to have taken the gunmen from the scene, and Everett Blackwell, 22, accused as a "tip-off" man.

Clyde E. Templeton, 30, and Oscar M. Cash, 25, brother of Albert Cash, were charged with accessories after the fact in that they allegedly assisted in the disposal of weapons alleged to have been used in slaying Ecklund and wounding Harry Stumm, Ecklund's assistant.

The indictment is in six counts, for the reason that United States Attorney Leo A. Rover wished to cover the indictment so that each of the four alleged principals was directly involved in the slaying.

All six men were captured shortly after Ecklund and Stumm were shot at New Jersey avenue and C street southeast Friday, as the victims were preparing to pay off painters working on the addition to the House Office Building.

Overcome Woman Saved by Fireman

Policeman's Wife Risks Life When Bungalow Home Burns.

Fire, apparently caused by a defective furnace flue, destroyed the six-room bungalow home of Dewey L. Guest, a patrolman attached to the Ninth Precinct, at Tuxedo, Md., yesterday afternoon.

When the fire broke out, Mrs. Guest took her three small children from the house, and then tried frantically to save a few of the family belongings. Partially overcome by smoke, she was taken from the house by Adolph Mender, a fireman, only a few minutes before the roof collapsed.

Only a radio and a few pieces of furniture were saved. The total loss was estimated at about $5,000. The Tuxedo, Bladensburg and Cottage City Volunteer fire companies responded.

Transfer Official Plans to Remarry

David P. Smith Gets License to Wed Miss Subira, of New York.

Plans for the marriage of David P. Smith, an official of the Merchants Transfer & Storage Co., and Miss Marjorie L. Subira were revealed yesterday with the announcement of a marriage license obtained in New York City.

Miss Subira, who lives in New York, gave her age as 23 and occupation as an interior decorator. Smith said he lived at the Harrington Hotel here, and gave his age as 33. He was divorced from his first wife last October, he said.

Mr. Smith has been connected with the transfer company for some time. Officials of the Harrington Hotel said he had not been there for several days.

Theft of $800 Diamond Necklace Is Reported

Mrs. Silverman told Eighth Precinct police that the theft occurred early this month. She valued the necklace at $800.

Wind Wins

Tears Down Power Lines and Stops WJSV for 40 Minutes.

When radio station WJSV went off the air for 40 minutes last night, the Columbia Broadcasting Co. was flooded with calls to learn the reason. A popular program was halted at 9:20 p. m., and transmission was not resumed until 10 p. m.

Station officials said the trouble centered at the Alexandria, Va., power plant. Lines to the transmitter in Alexandria had been torn down by high winds, they said. But the power plant had a different story. There had been trouble, they admitted, but thought it not of proportions to cause WJSV any concern.

For those who missed the program, it can be said that Gracie Allen's brother is still missing.

ROBBERY IS CHARGED TO YOUTH, 19, AFTER ALLEGED CONFESSION

Grand Larceny Is Laid to Two Others in $360 Safe Theft.

Thomas Hankins, 19-year-old receiving clerk, of the East Clifton Terrace Apartments, who has been a trusted employe of the Palais Royal department store warehouse at First and O street northeast for the last four years, yesterday was charged with robbery. It is reported he was the "brains" and instigator of the theft early Saturday of $360 from a safe in the warehouse.

Two colored men, Daniel Adams, 26, of 1338 R street northwest, and Grant Brunson, 24, of 432 M street northwest, alleged perpetrators of the robbery, were, at the same time, charged with grand larceny. All three will be arraigned in Police Court this morning for a preliminary hearing.

Was "Inside Job."

Hankins was arrested Tuesday night by Detective Sergts. E. F. Lewis and Larry O'Dea, of the Robbery Squad, after determining through investigation that the safe-cracking was an "inside job."

Detectives questioned the youth and he finally confessed his part, implicating the two colored men, who were arrested later. The plans for the robbery were first laid on January 17, according to Hankins' confession.

$60 of Loot Recovered.

Joseph F. Ashford, 67-year-old night watchman of the warehouse, was bound and gagged by the colored men during the theft, but was not hurt. He worked loose from his bonds several hours later and called police.

The colored men moved the safe from a first-floor office to the basement, where they broke it open with sledge hammers.

Hankins told inquisitors that he was to get $120 as his share of the loot. So far, $60 of the $360 has been recovered.

Harris Reindicted In Henry Slaying

Action Follows Inquiry by Government in Death of Racketeer.

Charles Harris, who is under indictment for the slaying of Milton "Millsie" Henry, small-time racketeer, last April, was reindicted by the District grand jury yesterday on a charge of first-degree murder.

Harris had been indicted with Harry Davis last August. Both are in the District Jail. The indictment yesterday, naming only Harris, was based on an investigation made by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, who asked for the new indictment.

Henry was found seated in his automobile in front of his home, killed by a shotgun charge. He had been fired at before he had a chance to use a small pistol he was carrying.

Woman Painfully Hurt When Struck by Auto

While attempting to cross the street at the intersection of Columbia road and Biltmore street northwest during last night's rainstorm, Mrs. Rubie S. Stahl, 40, of 1940 Biltmore street, was knocked down and painfully injured by a taxicab.

Hartwell F. Hilderbrand, 39, said by police to be the operator of the cab, took the woman to Emergency Hospital, where she was treated for fracture of her nose and several ribs. Hilderbrand lives at 814 I street northwest. No charges were placed against him.

Two Indicted for Murder.

Two colored men were indicted by the District Grand Jury yesterday for the killing of two colored men. Those indicted were: Graham Henry Lee Gibson Farrell and Edward Henry Jones. Farrell is charged with having shot Albert F. Wilson, colored, last December, and Jones is alleged to have shot Thurber J. Battle, colored, New Year's day.
